After '80s boom time, '90s bring slower pace to village

By PAUL WOLF

DURING THE mid- and late 1980s, Carmel-by-the-Sea rode the crest of a great development wave. In case you haven't noticed, it has decidedly flattened out in this new decade.

Special report

"It's predominantly a matter of market forces," reflected Acting Planning Director Brian Roseth, citing the recession as the key to the slowed-down development activity. "This (cycle) happened not just locally, but nationwide."

It is widely considered that Reaganomics has left some unhappy vestiges (e.g., increased deficit, widened gap between rich and poor). But the 1980s proved to be boom time in many economic tors. Here at home, the list of statistics from the Carmel-by-the-Sea Planning Department reflects an obvious period of growth.

Building permits for remodels are a valuable indicator, as improving existing homes can be comfortably delayed during hard times.

1988: the peak year

Nineteen-eighty-eight was the peak year, according to statistics Roseth assembled at the request of The Carmel Pine Cone.

In 1984, 90 permits for remodels were processed. The number grew each year up to the 1988 level of 161. Afterward, the volume dropped off to a low of 99 in 1991. It did, last year, creep up a bit to 138.

As for building permits for commercial

Pebble Beach Co. president indicted for bank fraud

By JOHN DETRO

SLAMMED BY a federal grand jury indictment alleging conspiracy and bank fraud, Pebble Beach Co. President Tom Oliver on Wednesday got an initial vote of confidence from the Japanese-held resort.

TOM OLIVER

"Tom Oliver will continue as president of our company," reported Mark Verbonich, Pebble Beach Co.'s vice president for community affairs. "There has been no discussion of his resignation, and Pebble Beach will conduct business as usual. We anticipate that Tom will have the full support of the company and the community as we move into the future."

Verbonich said Pebble Beach Co. "will be issuing no statements on the charges."

Indictment content

John A. Mendez, United States Attorney for the Northern District, said on Wednesday that Oliver's arraignment was scheduled for Jan. 7 in San Jose before U.S. Magistrate Judge Patricia Trumbull. Oliver will remain free between now and then, Mendez said.

Mendez earlier announced the indictment of Oliver and five others "for their participation in a conspiracy to illegally acquire and control the former Bank of Los Gatos...and to defraud and misapply monies of the former Commodore Savings Association of Dallas, Texas."

A written statement from Mendez identified those indicted as Thomas A. Oliver, 55, Pebble Beach; Robert H. Hopkins Jr., 61, Dallas; Robert C. Bonner, 66, Pebble Beach; William Lane, 69, Coral Gables, Florida; Woodard Kingman, 67, San Francisco; Blynn Shideler, 57, Arizona.

"The Bank of Los Gatos was declared insolvent on July 23, 1987, resulting in a loss of approximately $1.2 million," Mendez said in the statement issued from his San Francisco office. "Commodore Savings also failed, at a loss to the United States of approximately $400 million."

Oliver charged

"Thomas Oliver was also charged individually with making a false statement to the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency in order to deceive that agency with

Leon Panetta

WE ALWAYS point with pride when a hometown product makes the big time. Most often in these recent years that has been when someone reached the big leagues of baseball or football. And that's good.

But now we have Leon Panetta, President-elect Bill Clinton's cabinet choice for running the Office of Management and Budget. And that, we will learn, is a league unto itself.

The power invested in Panetta will be unlike past political appointments, as we've reported in the pages of The Pine Cone. Because of Clinton's position on economic recovery, Panetta's influence will be momentous. Perhaps more importantly, Panetta will lend confidence to Clinton's national budget agenda because of his impeccable reputation in Congress.

We quote from the Congressional Quarterly of last weekend:

"...Panetta has earned a reputation as a dogged enforcer of the budget rules and a true believer in the critical importance of deficit reduction — often to the point of annoying his more doctrinaire Democratic colleagues."

To our way of thinking, Panetta's appointment also says something about Clinton. Asked about their differences on Clinton's position on the deficit the next president told reporters "(I'm) going to give him a chance to teach me some math."

Panetta will be an excellent instructor. Ever since he was forced to resigned in 1970 as director of the Office for Civil Rights because the Nixon Administration considered him too aggressive, Panetta has been in training for the OMB job.

Now, he has it. And we say that with pride.

Letters to the Editor

Letters to the editor are welcome. Views on all matters are acceptable, following the guidelines of good taste. Letters must not exceed 250 words in length. Letters are subject to editing for style and length. Each letter must contain name, address, telephone number and signature, and preferably be typed and double spaced. Anonymous letters, or those with no phone numbers will not be accepted.

Yard Lady

Dear Editor:

I would like to congratulate the lady who wrote the "Yard Lady" letter to The Pine Cone editor.

SHE'S BACK!

Found both very amusing, her letter, and her "Yard Lady."

Although I am not her anonymous "threat note" sender, by coincidence I also have a front door painted sky blue and I must admit that at times I feel like I look like her "Yard Lady." (I'm not overweight this year). Particularly when I am replanting new plants or bending in search (at times) for my morning Herald.

Personally, I think her Yard Lady would make an ideal refrigerator door, or better yet a front yard gate.

Better watch out! (Heh, heh, heh). Loved it!

With thanks

Dear Editor:

I would like to thank my friends and neighbors for their support throughout the last year.

Being an elected city official, I believe the listening to the residents, understanding the concerns of the business community and working together with staff, the various commissions and my fellow councilpersons will uphold the values that built our unique town. This is the key to solving problems.

It is my hope that together we can create a positive and productive new year.

My wife Star, joins me in wishing you all a happy holiday season.

Mo-town?

Dear Editor:

What I am about to tell you is not a joke. Due to a strange loop hole in zoning, the reason for which is known only to the planning department, an application is on file for a use permit to fabricate automobiles. No, not in Detroit, but right in Carmel Valley Village, behind the Running Iron Restaurant.

If you feel, as I do, that car manufacturing or any other industrial or heavy commercial use is inappropriate for this sensitive area, please sign the petition at the Running Iron today.

Visit to Carmel soured

Dear Editor:

This past July I fulfilled a long time desire to revisit Carmel. My visit was definitely soured when I saw a parking ticket on the windshield of my rented car. No big deal, you might say. I say it was a big deal! Because we were still travelling. I packed the ticket and forgot about it until I received an outstanding ticket notice mailed from Los Angeles on Nov.

New position for Pine Cone publisher

BILL BROWN, publisher of The Carmel Pine Cone for the last 10 years, has announced that effective Jan. 1, 1993 he will leave his position to accept a corporate assignment with his family-owned enterprises in the San Francisco Bay Area and San Joaquin Valley.

He also announced that Karen Carlson, the newspaper's sales director, has been named general manager. Carlson, who has been with the newspaper for more than eight years, will assume her new duties on Jan. 1.

"Karen's responsibilities will be to oversee the daily operation of the newspaper," Brown said, explaining that ownership of The Pine Cone will remain with the Brown-Wilson family.

"Brown-Wilson purchased The Pine Cone in 1982 and has owned it for a longer period of time than anyone in its 76-year history," Brown noted.

Carlson started with The Pine Cone in 1984 and held the position of business manager for three years before heading the advertising sales department.

Brown said he anticipated no other changes in staff assignments at the newspaper.

Referendum on downtown zoning changes developing

By PAUL WOLF

THE MOMENT there seemed a chance the long-standing commercial zoning controversy would finally be settled, the matter is entering a new phase.

A group of citizens, led by Al Eisner of Carmel, has begun circulating a petition in hopes of overturning the comprehensive zoning package the city council approved Dec. 8.

For starters, the council voted to expand the central-commercial district.

The petition calls for a referendum — something opponents of the zoning changes have been asking for informally for months.

"We are challenging the whole (zoning) ordinance, even though there are certain parts of it that might prove beneficial," Eisner said in a phone interview.

Petitioners must garner 10 percent of the signatures of Carmel's registered voters — roughly 400 of 4,000 — to oblige the city council to set a date of a special election. Petitioners have 30 days as of Dec. 8.

The council vote was 4-1, with Councilwoman Barbara Livingston as the sole dissenter.

"I think we'll get these signatures relatively easily," said Eisner, who is former owner of The Carmel Pine Cone.

Eisner and others object to the most controversial element of the package: expanding the central-commercial zoning district, which allows for the most intensive uses.

Since 1984, the "CC" district has been located on Ocean Avenue and to either side from Fifth Avenue to the north and almost to Seventh Avenue to the south.

The council approved moving the CC line all the way to Seventh. That action made a number of businesses eligible for CC commercial uses.

Supporters of the ordinance say the action simply restored zoning to the way it was before 1984, before the establishment of the service-commercial district. The SC was established as a means protecting resident-serving enterprises.

Other goals

The ordinance also contains provisions to speed up the permit process, cut down work for city staff and fine-tune permitted uses within each commercial district.

While some in town admit the SC experiment has not been a great success in retaining local-serving businesses, others stress a point: expanding the commercial district may have its hazards.

"This (the council's action) goes directly against the will of the people of Carmel," Eisner said, referring to a 1984 regard to his interest in the Bank of Los Gatos.

"Robert Hopkins was also named individually in five counts charging misapplication of the funds of Commodore Savings, of which he was Chairman of the Board."

The federal conspiracy charge carries a penalty of up to five years' imprisonment and a $250,000 fine, according to Mendez. If convicted of bank fraud, misapplication of funds or making false statements, those indicted face penalties of up to 30 years in prison and a fine of $1 million.

An investigation by the U.S. Attorney's office began in Dallas in 1988 and was continued by its San Jose office and the FBI in Monterey. The grand jury handed up the indictment following its presentation by Asst. U.S. Atty. Marcia Jensen. According to reliable sources, former Pebble Beach Co. staff members appeared as grand jury witnesses.

Bank failure

In his statement, U.S. Attorney Mendez said:

"The indictment stems from defendants' involvement with the Bank of Los Gatos, a bank originally conceived as a locally owned and managed financial institution...When the original capitalization of the bank failed, Robert Hopkins engineered its purchase through loans from Commodore Savings to Thomas A. Oliver, Robert C. Bonner, William A. Lane, Woodward Kingman and Blynn Shideler, business and personal associates of Hopkins, whom he recruited to act as nominee purchasers of stock in the Bank of Los Gatos.

"Hopkins' nominees received loans ranging from $4,300 to $400,000, which they used to buy Bank of Los Gatos stock in blocks of less than 10 percent to avoid federal reporting requirements.

"In each case in which a loan was disbursed, Hopkins reached an oral agreement with the recipient that the recipient would purchase Bank of Los Gatos stock and hold it for Hopkins' benefit at no personal liability to himself.

"The initial loans were followed up with loans to cover 100 percent of the interest due on the original stock purchase loan, again at no personal liability to the recipients.

Questionable loans

"Through the loans and nominee stock purchases, Hopkins became the effective owner and manager of the Bank of Los Gatos and demonstrated that through his hiring of bank officials, direction of lending and investment policy, including the purchase of over $4 million worth of participations in questionable loans from Commodore Savings and the funding of personal loans to himself, his businesses and his business associates."

The Office of the Comptroller of Currency, Mendez added, "identified these financial practices and the control of the Bank of Los Gatos by Hopkins through his nominees as key factors in the bank's failure."

The indictment resulted, he said, from the investigative efforts of Special Agent George Mozingo (Monterey FBI office) and the Dallas FBI.

Oliver, who was unavailable for comment yesterday, had previously issued a prepared statement earlier this year that read in part:

"Every loan that I acquired from entities associated with Robert Hopkins was secured in a professional, straightforward and legal manner...I strongly submit that these events...were and are totally unrelated to my position as president of the Pebble Beach Co. and were done as a personal investment on my part."

Panetta's next step: Senate confirmation

By PAUL WOLF

FOR THE moment, trying to discover how Leon Panetta will figure in the Clinton administration is a little like predicting the economy he will be absorbed in — pretty near impossible.

It's enough for now to deal with the transition.

There were a surprising number of questions for which Panetta press secredirector of the Office of Management and Budget, a key spot in the Executive Office of the President that functions as a cabinet level position.

Panetta, 54, travelled to Little Rock for the summit — mainly to listen and ask questions. And for now, there are more questions than answers.

The first one surrounds what Panetta must do during the transition. He remains congressman until his confirmatary Barry Toiv was clueless to answer. Further he was averse to speculating.

Would the Carmel Valley-based legislator, now tapped for the directorship at Office and Budget Management, glide through the Senate confirmation hearings next month?

Toiv's factual answer: "He will go before the Senate Governmental Affairs Committee, which then makes a recommendation to the full Senate, which will vote on him either up or down."

A new height for caution...

But one source in Washington, contacted by The Carmel Pine Cone, contended Panetta's role will be significant, and he found a colorful turn of phrase to describe his prospects.

"He will be one of the people issuing the marching orders for the House," the source said. "He will be at the heart of putting together an economic stimulus package."

By the economic summit this week in Little Rock, Clinton was already getting all kinds of advice on what that stimulus package should look like. He himself hasn't decided.

It was Friday, Dec. 10, Bill Clinton tapped Panetta, House Budget Committee Chairman since 1989, to serve as tion. "There isn't a schedule yet," Toiv said.

Part of the problem is that, until the congressman is given Senate approval, he can't hire anyone for his OMB staff. Apparently most of the OMB staff, consisting of hundreds of civil servant employees, will remain intact.

It was already announced that Clinton picked Alice Rivlin — just days ago a contender for the OMB director's post — as Panetta's soon-to-be deputy.

It appears inevitable Panetta must forge a good relationship with Robert Rubin, the New York financier whom Clinton named as national economic security advisor.

Would Panetta and this person work hand-in-glove, confer with the president daily? Toiv: "You don't expect me to know that, do you?"

Demonstrating his concern for the economy, the president-elect created the economic security post as a counterpart to the national security advisor, which briefs the president each morning.

Indeed, Clinton ran for president with the economy as his central theme. Whatever new direction and new programs he initiates, he will do so with the help of the

A message from the Mayor of Carmel-by-the-Sea A caring challenge ... join me, please

IT WILL BE my honor next Wednesday and Thursday to join that wonderful army of volunteers and take to the street — bell in hand — for the Salvation Army's annual holiday appeal.

On Wednesday and Thursday, 23 and 24 December — between 10 a.m. and noon both days — I have been assigned the Post Office shift. With my avowed goal being to lead my fellow Carmelites to a new record high of sharing, I have to admit that the Post Office is a plum assignment!

If you would like to join me in this most worthwhile effort, please consider delaying your contributions for just a few days (or better yet, make an additional contribution next week)! Be there at 10 — or get there by noon — walk to town, share a ride, hitch your sleigh — whatever it takes! To tell you the truth, I'm not really sure what the existing record of contributions for a two-hour period is. I do know that our community was very generous last year, but I believe we can beat our own record! The need is greater than ever. And, although the Salvation Army has a heart of gold, its purse needs some refilling this year. Let's work together again — this time for no personal interest to any of us other than the joy of sharing what we can, showing again the true spirit of the wonderful citizens of Carmel-by-the-Sea, and with thanks that we are in a position to share.

Thank you for your consideration.

18, 1992. The hair on the back of my neck stood up, once again, as I went digging to find the original ticket, as well as the rough notes I scribbled when we got back to our Holiday Inn hotel room that afternoon. (The notes are enclosed so you can get a sense of my frustration when the event occurred.) Following is my story:

We had a very difficult time finding anywhere to park in the first place, and only after driving around for about 15 minutes, did we spot a car pulling out. The space available between the two already parked cars wasn't exactly within a perfect parking space, but it was a parking space and I took it. I was excited to have the chance to share my long-time exuberance for a beautiful place with my daughter. A daughter I had a 98 percent chance of losing from a brain hemorrhage just two years ago. We were extra mindful of the parking time limit because of her labored walking, and had allowed extra time to get back to the car. We got back to the car, thinking that we made it in time — until I saw the ticket. We must have just missed the very efficient parking enforcer, the time marked on the ticket actually matched what my watch then said. The parking enforcer must have been sitting with a stop watch only inches away, it was literally that close. The crowning glory was that the ticket not only said we were late, but claimed that we were parked between parking lines! As I explained earlier, we squeezed into the space just vacated by another car, and between two cars already parked there, I can only wonder if they enriched the City of Carmel's coffers as well.

We stayed at the Monterey Holiday Inn for three nights and had hoped to spend two days scouring the sights and shops of Carmel. That was until I had the ticket incident. I decided on the spot that if I had to be punished in order to visit Carmel — I just didn't need it!

I am truly sorry that my bubble was burst. I had such fond memories of Carmel and it was ruined by what appears to be opportunistic greed. I would have gladly paid to park in a parking lot, or if parking is so limited, how about shuttling people in from outer parking areas? Anything would be better than treating visitors like victims!

Think twice

Dear Editor:

In the interest of honesty, fair play and a more unified Carmel community in the new year, I would like to urge all citizens to think twice before they sign any petition presented at the Carmel-by-the-Sea post office or elsewhere.

Recently, Mr. Al Eisner has announced to the media that he and others will be circulating a petition calling for a referendum to overturn commercial zoning changes adopted by the Carmel City Council. Mr. Eisner's bias against Carmel business and common sense zoning is puzzling since for years he made a fine living off these same businessmen and women.

What is even stranger is that Mr. Eisner has only become a resident of Carmel-by-the-Sea in recent weeks. He did not take the time to be present at the many public hearings regarding zoning conducted over a two and one half year period.

Scare tactics, distortion of facts, jealousy and pettiness are harmful and seem out of place in this beautiful town. At a time when the city has so many serious problems, fiscal and otherwise, isn't it time to use common sense and work together? How many political footballs tossed back and forth do we really need?

Mr. Eisner and his small group, apparently a spin-off of the Carmel Residents Association, may relish their political game playing but if concerned residents want the true facts, they might consider contacting City Atty. Don Freeman or Mayor Ken White for illumination rather than being manipulated by people who do not seem to have the best interests of Carmel at heart.

Lost border control

Dear Editor:

How amazing! American citizens aren't concerned about the ultra-liberal illegal immigration policies of Congressman Panetta. We have lost control of our borders and cannot stem the flow of illegal immigrants or contraband such as drugs. This mass influx has brought disease, crime and heavy financial burden to the taxpayers.

Who makes the decisions on immigration policies and why don't the American people have anything to say about it? The California Auditor General's report on the costs of free services to undocumented immigrants in San Diego County to be $145,921,845! Statewide costs are estimated at over $3,000,000,000. A $7.5 billion dollar deficit is already projected for next year.

Come on Leon, chairman of the House Budget Committee, how about full funding for the Border Patrol as you agreed to in the 1986 Immigration Reform Bill? That stipulation was to double the size of the Border Patrol so that illegal immigration would be controlled. If you don't act soon, these costs will break the backs of the taxpaying middle class in California.

Let's make our voices heard in Washington and Sacramento! We must demand of our Federal and State Legislatures that something drastic be done and soon!

Support gaining for revamping water district's at-large elections

By PAUL WOLF

THEY ARE not legally bound to, but there appears to be a sentiment it is the right thing to do.

Peninsula water directors are laying the groundwork for replacing the current at-large water board elections with a format including five separate voter divisions.

"The cities of Seaside and Monterey currently have no representation on the water board," said Board Chairman Dale Hekhuis, himself a Monterey County resident living just outside the Carmel city limits. "This (redistricting) would give them a leg-up on the rest of the board."

Directors Monday received a report from the three-month-old Voter District Advisory Committee, an 18-member panel whose majority supports the concept of separate wards.

The committee also recommends eliminating the two ex officio director seats — one which comes from the Monterey County Board of Supervisors, the other from area mayors.

Kip Hudson, who was hired by the board to chair the committee, told the seven-member water board Monday that the two appointed positions "dilute what you are trying to accomplish."

As for voter districts, the argument goes that the interests of certain geographical areas and community interests, regardless of the ethnic makeup of voters, would come into sharper focus. And candidates for water board would not have to cover an unreasonably large area during their campaigns.

"Ethnicity isn't going to be the driving force," said Director Jim Hughes in a phone interview. "It's community interest more along geographical and political lines. Different people from different areas have different opinions."

There appears to be a solid ground of support on the board, which has the authority to change the voting rules by simple resolution.

Here is the way the water district is divided up under the plan known as "E-1": 1) The southern portion of Fort Ord and most of Seaside; 2) A small piece of Seaside, Sand City, a portion of Monterey, Del Rey Oaks and a piece of Monterey County; 3) A large part of Monterey and the county; 4) All of Pacific Grove and some of Pebble Beach; 5) Some of Pebble Beach and a large expanse of county.

Committee members hope the voter districts will be in place by November, at which time the terms of Directors Hekhuis and Kenneth Long will have expired.

The committee recommended that Districts 1 and 2 should be the subjects of the first, newly configured election, in November. "I see this as fair," Hekhuis said in a phone interview. "The cities of Seaside and Monterey would simply get to catch up with the rest of the peninsula that has representation."

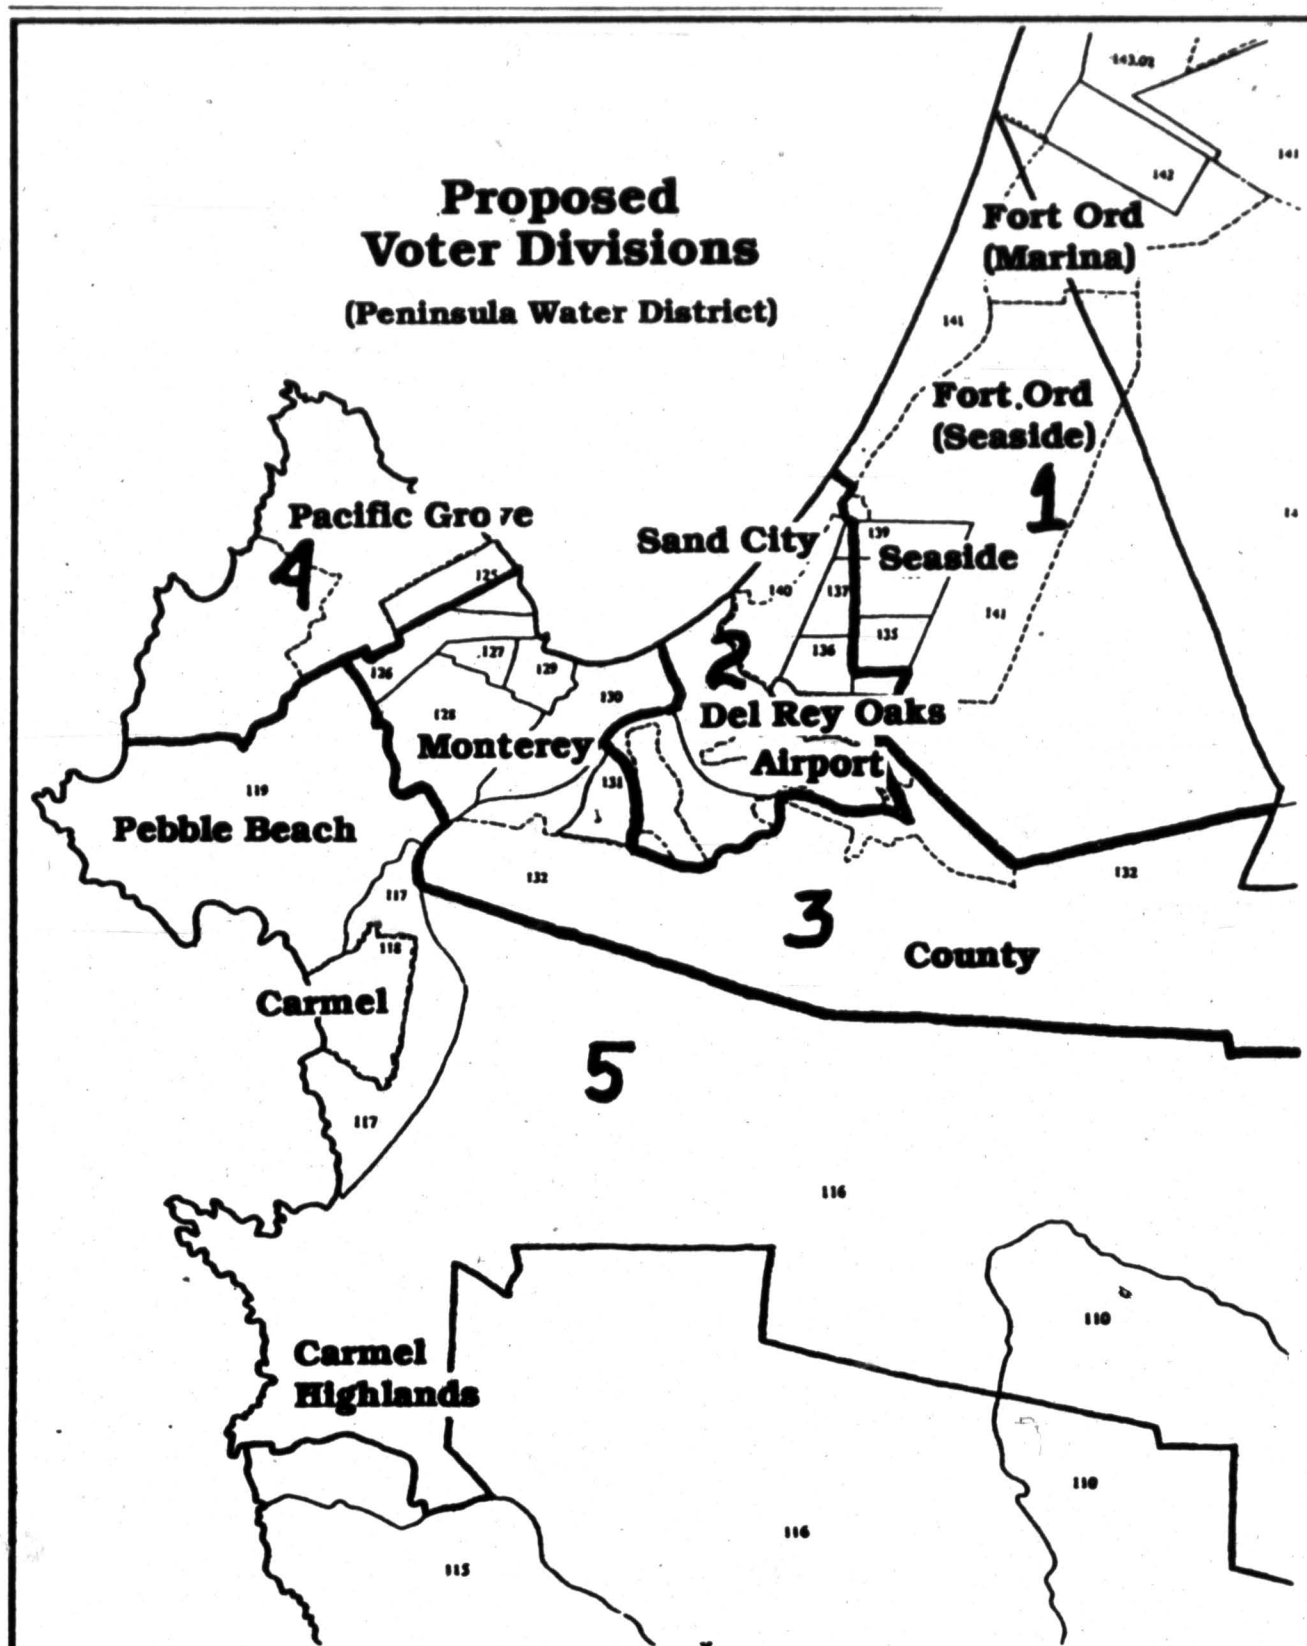

A study session is scheduled for Feb. 8. The board is expected to act March 15.

It was made clear at Monday's meeting that the water district currently complies with the stipulations of the Voting Rights Act of 1964.

Nevertheless, there is a will to revamp the voting setup. Director Dick Heuer appeared the sole critic Monday evening.

He argued that, while the voting divisions would be based on population, "voter registration and turnout vary greatly." Since water board elections come during "off years," he argued the disparity in voter turnouts can be alarming. About 4.7 times as many people cast their ballots in water board elections in some areas than in others.

"So if your vote counts five times more than mine, I ask, 'Is that fair?'"

KNOWN AS alternative "E-1," this map shows the five wards in which peninsula residents would cast their votes for regional water directors. Currently, elections are at-large.

Carmel tightens belt in recession-plagued '90s

property, again the rise and fall is evident: there were 55 in 1984, 76 in 1988 and 48 in 1992.

In the category of new single family residences, they were as follows: 12 for 1984, 41 for 1988, and 15 for 1992.

Roseth characterized "the boom period" as spanning from 1986 to 1990. And from the vantage point of late 1992, it is well understood the nation as a whole is enduring a two-and-a-half-year recession. Bust followed boom on the peninsula with a slumping housing market which ended a long, astonishing rise in property values.

Real estate is an interesting indicator in itself. For Carmel-by-the-Sea, the median price for a single-family home went from $313,000 in 1988, to $394,500 the following year, then to $510,000 in 1990. However, in 1991 it plummeted to $458,000. Through September of this year, the median price is $445,000.

Roseth, however, noted that the slow-down in permit activity at city hall also can be ascribed to tight water supplies and policies. "At times," he said, "we have not been able to issue permits for additional water in projects that include additional plumbing fixtures, or for new homes on vacant lots."

Ailing city revenues

It's not hard to draw correlations between the private and the public sectors.

It was also during the mid-1980s that such city revenue sources as sales tax and hostelry tax began a dramatic rise. The former climbed from 10 to 18 percent on each of years up through the 1987-88 fiscal year.

But then, in 1988-89, it rose only 4 percent. In 1989-90, it actually dropped.

BRIAN ROSETH

Sales tax crept back up 4 percent in 1990-91, then falling to 10 percent in 1991-92.

Hostelry tax, which is the revenue associated with motels and inns, hasn't suffered quite as much as sales tax during this recession — people come but don't spend. But the same lackluster trend is evident.

That revenue source grew robustly through the 1987-88 fiscal year, but only 1 percent in 1988-89. There was no growth the following year, one percent in the 1991-92 fiscal year, and, finally, a modest 3 percent last year.

It appears 1988 may go down as the good old days in Carmel — the crest of a wave that may now seem like longer ago than just four years.

Perennial tree debate in Carmel defies easy answers

By PAUL WOLF

WHEN CARMEL'S Linda Smith was a kid and a big storm hit town, her father would pack the family into the Chrysler and drive to the parking lot at the Carmel River mouth.

"We'd brave the storm out there instead of spending it at risk in the cottage," she said.

That bit of family lore speaks of an ethic, of sacrificing for trees rather than their sacrificing for us.

Smith's father, Harry Lachmund, was a forester by profession and may have had special sympathies. But the tale may still be instructive.

In every town fortunate enough to have a touch of green and shade, the debate rages: At what point do trees present enough of a threat to people and property that they should be removed?

On both sides of this debate it is agreed that, if it were a choice between saving a human life and a tree, the person should win out. But, unfortunately, the controversy is never that simple.

"The environmentalists get a little extreme when they say every tree should be saved," said Councilman Bob Fischer in a telephone interview.

Certainly, extremism and hot temper are not the monopoly of one side. When, on Dec. 8, the council was ruling on one of these trees-vs.-property cases, one speaker indelicately stated the offending pine should be "turned into the Sunday paper."

The case at hand was an application for the removal of a 65-year-old pine at a home at Monterey Street and Valley Way. The council will reconsider the application at its January meeting.

Some 50 trees a year are taken down upon the request of residents with safety concerns. Every tree hurts when you consider the context of a city already concerned about its diminishing and aging pine population on private property.

"I think everyone in Carmel loves trees," Fischer said. If that is not the question, the debate surrounds determining the dangers to people and property.

Fischer added that most of the time he likes to defer to the recommendations of the professional city forester. But sometimes, however, Kelly defers to the council.

Whoever decides whether a tree stays up or not is dealing with as much art as science, especially when considering an important fact: "If the winds blow hard enough, any tree can fall down," as Kelly put it.

"I don't believe I'm a tree-crazy person," said Karen Ferlito, president of the Friends of the Carmel Forest, speaking in a phone interview after the meeting. "If a tree is unhealthy or unsafe, it should be removed."

She passed on an important realization about Carmel history: "People came to a forest and built cottages in it. But there were inherent risks. If we were to remove every tree that might fall on a house, we might as well live in Seaside. We'd have a treeless city."

Kelly notes that there has never been a fatality in Carmel resulting from a wind-topped tree. "During the storms of 1983 and 1984, less than one-tenth of one percent of the pines on public property fell," he said.

Perhaps there are more comforting statistics out there. What makes a family drive away from the home during a storm—or request a tree removal—may not be based on the rational interpretation of numbers.

Panetta a well-known figure on Capitol Hill

Democratic-controlled House and Senate.

In this light, the Washington source suggested, it would be hard to underestimate the role Panetta will play in the new leadership. No one is more tapped into Congress than Panetta. What a salesman he could make!

Referring to Texas Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, Clinton's pick for Treasury secretary, the source said, "Bensten and Panetta both are well-known on Capitol Hill."

Like Clinton, the two lawmakers are, fiscally speaking, moderates within the Democratic party. As the new president moves into the honeymoon phase of his term, he will be flanked by a pair of old pros who know their way around.

But for now, there is no schedule for the transition.

Carmel Youth Center, Salvation Army

A ROCK 'N' ROLL concert benefitting the local chapter of the Salvation Army was held at the Carmel Youth Center Dec. 12., featuring the sounds of 40 Thieves, Talisman, Fallout, and Pumpkin Jetti.

CYC Director Pat Lenz said about 250 people, who had to be 21 or under, attended the show Saturday night.

"I want to set something up for bands from Carmel High to be able to come and play more often," Lenz said.

Aside from the heavy metal music, what made this event unusual was the admission price: Kids shelled out $1 and two items of canned food to get in the door, or $3 without cans.

Lenz said the four-hour show netted over 200 cans of food for the Salvation Army and $300 for the CYC.

Stemming the drug tide: parenting class launched

By SCOTT BREARTON

STARTING NEXT year, the Carmel will offer a series of innovative parenting classes designed to strengthen family bonds, improve communication and resolve conflicts among parents and children.

Taught by trained CUSD staff, the classes provide parent training in active listening, discipline, conflict resolution, communication and consulting skills.

Jerry Pesce, a school psychologist hired in September, is the district's newest Drug, Alcohol, and Tobacco Education (DATE) coordinator, and will be teaching the parenting classes next year. A parent of two, ages 7 and 9, Pesce knows firsthand the difficulties facing parents and children.

"It (the Parent Effectiveness Training program) allows them to put their children in perspective," said Pesce, "without trying to fix everything wrong in a child's life."

Key factors

Organizers claim the classes provide training that will help parents feel better about themselves in their role and strengthen family bonds and relationships - two key factors in preventing chemical and alcohol abuse by children.

The classes are based on Dr. Thomas Gordon's revolutionary parent education course, established in 1962. Gordon is the author of two books - Parent Effectiveness Training: The Tested New Way To Raise Responsible Children, and P.E.T. in Action. According to Pesce, his is one of the oldest of such programs and is "a very effective parent-training program."

"I think for a while, because it was born in the '60s, people thought it was a real permissive, hands-off parenting style," Pesce said. "I think it depends on the way it's taught."

Pesce relieves Janelle Malek, who headed the DATE program last year and is currently the CUSD Health Specialist.

Kay Anderson, a counselor at Carmel Middle School, and CUSD School Psychologist Stuart McDowell offered a similar five-week parenting class last spring, "Preparing for the Drug-Free Years."

According to Pesce, the course focused on "how to tune parents into drug problems and how to teach refusal skills."

Another parenting class, "Active Parenting," was offered last year by Katherine Weller and Marie Rutherford, both parents and licensed therapists.

"Initially, parents thought the time frame was too long, but by the end they wanted to keep it going and continue meeting as a group."

The classes are being made available through the district's DATE program, a federally funded entitlement grant with a state component. According to Malek, CUSD became eligible for DATE money three years ago after meeting conditions established by the state.

DATE grant money actually comes from two sources - the federal Drug-free Schools and Communities Act and the state Tobacco Youth Prevention Education grant.

The California Alcohol and Drug Prevention Act made up of the third component of the D.A.T.E. program, before state budget cuts forced its closure earlier this year.

Malek said the CUSD received about $30,000 from the DATE grants combined during each of the first three years, but will now receive roughly $10,000 less with the elimination of the CADPE grant.

"The district is supporting many of the programs with supplemental money from the DATE grants," Malek said, explaining that the money is released by the state and federal governments after the district

Zoning controversy

survey of registered voters who oppose expanding the central-commercial uses.

Despite the lengthy process to date, a Carmel General Plan review committee was never convened to examine the proposals, Elsner complained.

"We have reluctantly decided to proceed with the referendum process because the council ignored repeated requests by the citizens of Carmel that the city submit the controversial issue to the voters," he wrote in a statement.

A special election would cost roughly $10,000, according to City Clerk Jeanne Brehmer. The last such referendum was held back in April of 1968, when residents threw out a law enacted by the council, in December of 1967, to establish a use permit process for motels in the residential district.

At the Dec. 8 meeting, the council was considering the ordinance on second reading. On first reading, Nov. 3, the council approved what had all the appearances of a compromise.

The "injustices" of the 1984 downzoning for commercial property owners near Seventh would be rectified. The SC zone would become somewhat less restrictive. Meanwhile, numerical caps were to be put on such heavy commercial uses as art galleries, souvenir shops and jewelry stores.

Livingston's argument

Councilwoman Livingston read a long prepared statement reemphasizing the points of her opposition. She argued it is not small business owners, but commercial landlords, who favor the expansion of the existing CC district.

She said rents would be increase with looser zoning, and the character of Carmel would be affected for the worse. "Let us put the quality of life for all above the quantity of money for the few," she said.

Elsner wrote that the petition is based on the concern Carmel "will be perceived as nothing more than an expensive shopping mall...The people of Carmel are concerned about the proliferation of tourist-oriented businesses in Carmel."

The big wheels roll in

No, THIS is not some historical image dug up from the archives. It's Lover's Point in Pacific Grove, circa 1992. It is this past week, in fact. This group is with the California Wheelmen, the state chapter of the international organization.

Not only are they seen here with the notorious big-wheeled vehicles, but they are all wearing authentic fin-de-siecle attire. The trick to these early bicycles is learning how to mount and dismount.

On Friday, Dec. 11, the day this photograph was taken, these men trekked along 17 Mile Drive — from Carmel to Cannery Row and back.

Within coming years, Carmel will be the setting of an international ride for hobbyists who fancy these turn-of-the-century vehicles. So expect a future-shock that looks something like an image from the past. (Ron Allen photo) documents its participation in appropriate anti-drug programs.

Risk factors

One component of the DATE program is to identify the risk factors associated with increased tendency toward alcohol and drug-related problems. By identifying the risk factors in school, family, peer groups and community, counselors can develop strategies designed to reduce a specific risk.

"Part of the DATE grant goals were to increase on-line counseling services," said Pesce. "The district has really put some money behind providing more counseling services."

Pesce, who served as a counselor for the Placentia Yorba Linda School District in Orange County before coming to Carmel, noted some of the similarities and differences between the district he left and Carmel Unified.

"I think it (CUSD) is unique in that it's such a small district," said Pesce. "Everyone knows each other. I think the closeness brings with it a whole new atmosphere."

But Pesce isn't convinced that parents are as educated as they need to be about the effects of drug abuse.

"There's a huge student population that uses," Pesce said. "I'm not sure that people in the community are aware how much drugs—even pot—can affect young people in the way they deal with day-to-day decisions."

Beefing up counseling

The district has beefed up counseling staff considerably since the CUSD first received its DATE grant three years ago.

Two full-time counselors, Trudy Dowd and Stephanie Allen, were hired at Tularcitos and River Elementary School, respectively, prior to the start of the 1992-93 school year. The district's newest counselors coordinate support groups aimed at kids with special needs, such as self-esteem or family problems.

According to Karen Camilli, principal at Tularcitos Elementary School, Dowd works as an on-site counselor at Tularcitos four days a week. Camilli said Dowd spends one day per week at the district office, where she serves as the DATE liaison for the three elementary schools.

Consider that the district has used DATE money to:
•Implement a comprehensive anti-drug curriculum in kindergarten through sixth-grade classes entitled "Here's Looking at You 2,000."

•Form a Health Advisory Committee, whose innovative "Safe Homes" program has given a whole new meaning to responsible parenting. According to Pesce, the Health Advisory Committee sets annual goals which work to meet the long-range goals of the D.A.T.E. program.

•Offer staff development programs:

•Expand peer counseling services.

•Provide seed money from the grant to pilot a peer counseling program at Carmel Middle School, now in its third year, and an advanced peer counseling class at CHS.

"The parenting classes are under the umbrella of the D.A.T.E. grants," said Pesce.

The district will offer the eight-week parenting course beginning Jan. 20. For further information about the classes, call Jerry Pesce or Shelly Nemeth at the CUSD office, 624-1546.

Odello East

Big Sur Land Trust puts development on hold

By SUSAN BECK

IN AN historic decision, the Odello family cast the fate of Odello East to The Big Sur Land Trust.

The announcement was made Monday at the 134-acre artichoke field along Highway One adjacent to the Carmel River.

Brian Steen, the trust's executive director, said that $1.35 million from local conservation lenders was loaned to the Odello family with low interest to obtain a purchase option on their property.

The agreement would put on hold the 76-lot Coast Ranch subdivision development including six moderate-income housing units until June 1994.

The Odellos have grown artichokes on the property since the 1920s, and pursued the development project at the eastern most part of Odello East for the last three decades.

Coast Ranch was unanimously approved by the Monterey County Board of Supervisors in May of 1991.

In a turn around decision less than one year ago, the Odellos approached the non-profit land trust organization with an interest in an open space project, said Zad Leavy, attorney for the organization.

The Big Sur Land Trust had proposed the idea to the family in 1980, said Leavy. But, he added, now there is an enthusiastic support by the land trust's conservation lenders in addition to the generosity of the Odellos.

"This is a major challenge," said Leavy, "and we are optimistic we will be able to make this work."

Bruno Odello talked about how when he was a young boy going to the Bay School at Monterey Beach he never could have imagined this turn of events. "I hope and pray that it will never be my sad story that one spade of dirt was turned over for development."

His sister, Bruna, said that the family truly preserved the land. "We love the area, we love the community. We are here to stay. All of you can help and make this a dream come true."

Despite feelings

Despite their feelings, said Steen, the Odello family is prepared to develop their property if the land trust cannot secure the low purchase price of $5.6 million by the 1994 deadline.

The Big Sur Land Trust track record since its inception in 1978 is 66 acquisitions totaling 8,950 acres valued at $25 million.

The main source of revenue for the purchase of Odello East is expected to come from a bond measure similar to Proposition 17 in Big Sur, said Karin Strasser Kauffman, chair of the county board of supervisors.

"This acquisition merges twin goals," said Strasser Kauffman. "The protection of the environment, and the protection of property rights. It is a better resolution than development. This is the gateway to Big Sur," she added. "The campaign will be to convince the public that the land is well worth preserving so that we don't have to fear that something unacceptable will happen here."

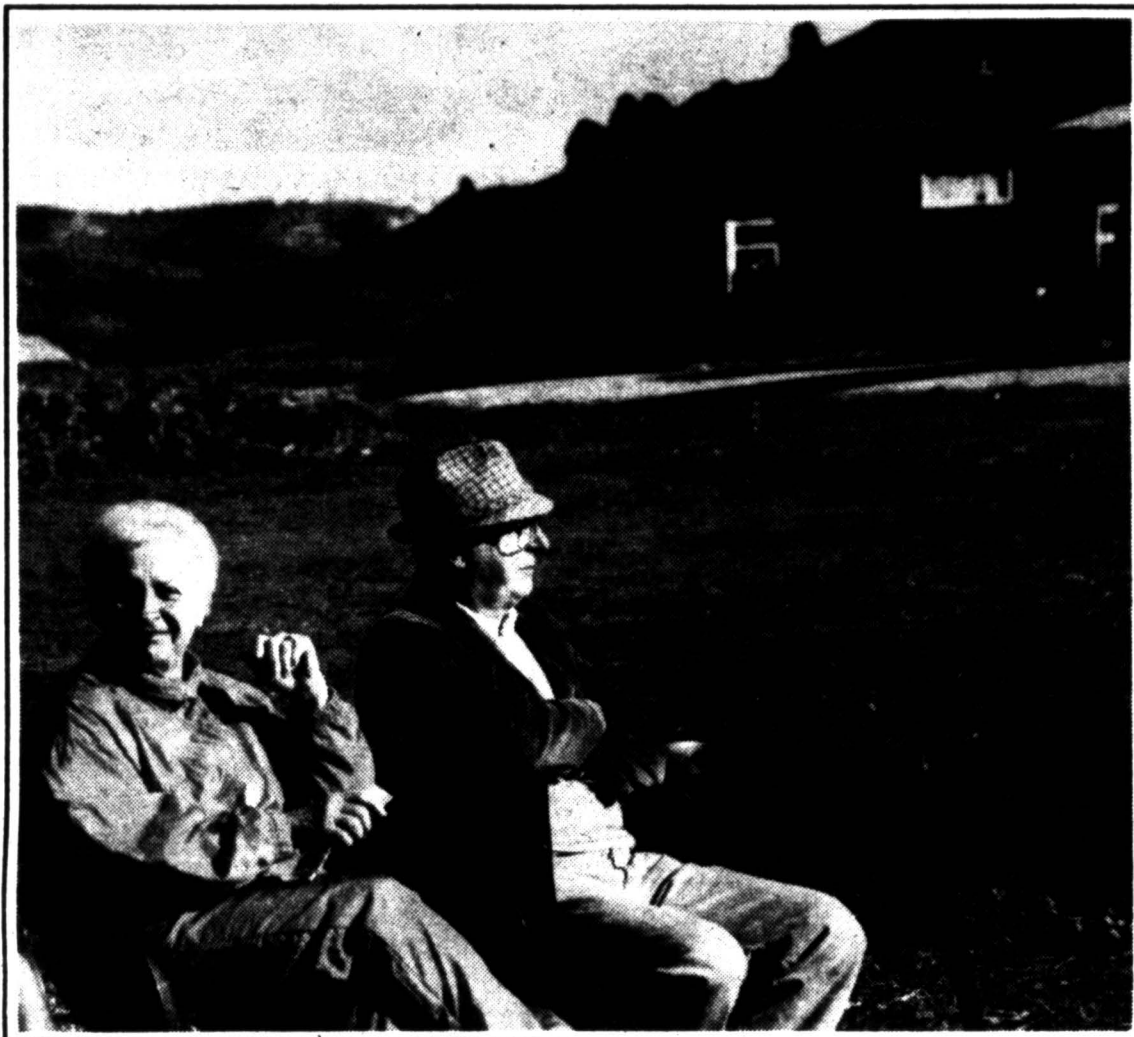

Which is exactly what Senator Fred Farr did in the late 1960s in his successful campaign to bring about the purchase

Redistricting

The message is clear: one community, two votes

By SUSAN BECK

CARMEL VALLEY residents attending the County Redistricting Commission hearing Monday in Salinas established a clear message: Don't mess with the valley.

Fran Farina lives in Carmel Valley and was among those from the area who presented arguments to the redistricting commission.

She is an avid proponent against splitting Carmel Valley or reducing the Monterey Peninsula's representation on the Monterey County Board of Supervisors to one seat from two, which could happen if the commission decides to adopt the Sept. 4 Avila Redistricting Map.

"We let them know that on no uncertain terms would it be unacceptable," said Farina.

Allan Sandstrum, president of the Carmel Valley Property Owners Association, presented a statement to the commission.

The statement said that the Sept. 4 Avila map being considered by the commission, "would take a bite out of Carmel Valley."

The detached segment of Carmel Valley, said Sandstrum, which is the Fifth Supervisorial District, would be attached to the Second District. He added that the majority of the Second District is located in the Salinas Valley.

"We strongly object to this feature of the Avila Plan, even as we recognize the legal and moral need to secure an enhanced opportunity for Hispanic representation in the county supervisor chambers," Sandstrum told the board.

Roger Williams, also an association member added later that there are two centers of commerce, the unincorporated Carmel Valley Village and mouth of the valley shopping centers, which are 15 miles apart with one road connecting them.

Cachagua

Voters to decide on fire district

By SUSAN BECK

RESPONDING TO the desires of the Cachagua community, the Local Agency Formation Commission voted unanimously to approve the formation of a Cachagua Fire Protection District.

The decision was made at a hearing Tuesday at the Monterey County Board of Supervisors chambers. About 50 Cachagua residents attended the hearing, some to reiterate strong sentiment in support of forming a new fire district.

"The valley has become a unique cohesive ecosystem of people and environment, with a special shared community of interests," said Rogers. "To have more than one supervisor representing Carmel Valley would be undesirable."

Farina said that during the hearing it was pointed out that the Sept. 4 Avila map was based on identifying where ethnic groups lived, but it did not outline any natural boundaries or neighborhoods.

"That's good news," she added, "It's a relatively small number, and I'm keeping my fingers crossed that can be offset somewhere else, taking the pressure off of us."

Farina said that attorney Joaquin Avila, who represents the Latino community and the Sept. 4 plan, also recognized the discrepancy when he told the commission that the redistricting lines splitting Carmel Valley and diminishing two county board seats to one "could be cleaned up."

After almost two years of deliberation about which redistricting map would best accommodate all of the county's residents and comply with the Voting Rights Act providing fair representation to minorities, the issue is now in the hands of the commission.

Commission chairman, district attorney Dean Flippo, planned to meet with the county's demographer Wednesday to attempt to create a map that would satisfy every interest group in the county. The commission's deadline is Dec. 31.

and preservation in public ownership of Odello West, 155-acres east of Highway One to the Pacific Ocean.

Farr along with several other conservationist founded the non-profit corporation Our Land Acquisition Fund specifically to raise $350,000 to purchase the Odello East property for transfer to the California State Parks Department.

The Odellos continue to farm the property under a leaseback arrangement.

In the spirit of land acquisition fund raisers before him, Steen said, "We are committed to preserving the land, and will be soliciting people on the peninsula after Christmas for the project."

Big Sur

BSLT is on a buying spree

THIS MONTH The Big Sur Land Trust purchased the Lange homestead in Big Sur for $925,000.

The homestead is a 680-acre property located in the mountains east of Garrapata Beach. It is known for its significant mountain lion habitat.

The State Wildlife Conservation Board funded the Santa Lucia property last spring.

The Department of Fish and Game will manage the habitat as an ecological reserve. Also on the property is an abundant presence of rate plant, seaciff buckwheat. The buckwheat is the host plant for the endangered Smith's Blue butterfly, known only to exist in Monterey County.

The Monterey Peninsula Regional Park District allocated $125,000 received from Proposition 17 funds to the project to offset the cost which the land trust needed to close the transaction.

The Big Sur Land Trust is a non-profit organization founded in 1978 to preserve open space throughout the county's coastal area.

Cachagua fire district offers autonomy

Chris Pentony, a volunteer fighter for the Cachagua Volunteer Fire Co., told the commission that the principle issue is the service level in Cachagua.

"It is difficult to run a fire district," said Pentony. "But for the past 15 years it has been difficult to run the fire company. The idea of having a fire district is to provide solid funding. We do provide a high quality of service throughout the area and a the formation of a district will allow us the financial ability to continue to do that."

The final decision on the Cachagua fire district will go before the voters in an election on May 12, 1993.

Emil Pozzi, chief of the Cachagua fire company, said, "Now, we have to prove to the community that we can make this work."

The new district will cover about 110 square miles from the 14-mile marker on Carmel Valley Road to the 32-mile marker and from Cachagua Road six miles to Tassajara Road.

The exception will be the area between Sleepy Hollow and Cachagua Road. The area is in the exiting Cachagua fire company's jurisdiction, and within five miles of the Carmel Valley Fire Protection District.

The commission excluded it from the proposed district formation designating it as a future study area outside the district's sphere of influence.

The Cachagua fire Co. will continue to be responsible for the area with the formal responsibility for service being determined after the district is established.

At that time, negotiations between the Carmel Valley fire department and the Cachagua fire company will determine who will cover the area.

The proposed Cachagua fire district would be financed with a benefit assessment collected from parcels in the district. Each vacant parcel would be charged $48, and parcels with one home would pay $96 per year.

About $38,000 a year is expected from the assessments. The Cachagua Volunteer Fire Co. is planning to continue two local fund raisers, which are expected to provide an additional $5,000 annually.

The formation agency commission's position is to encourage consolidation rather than form new districts.

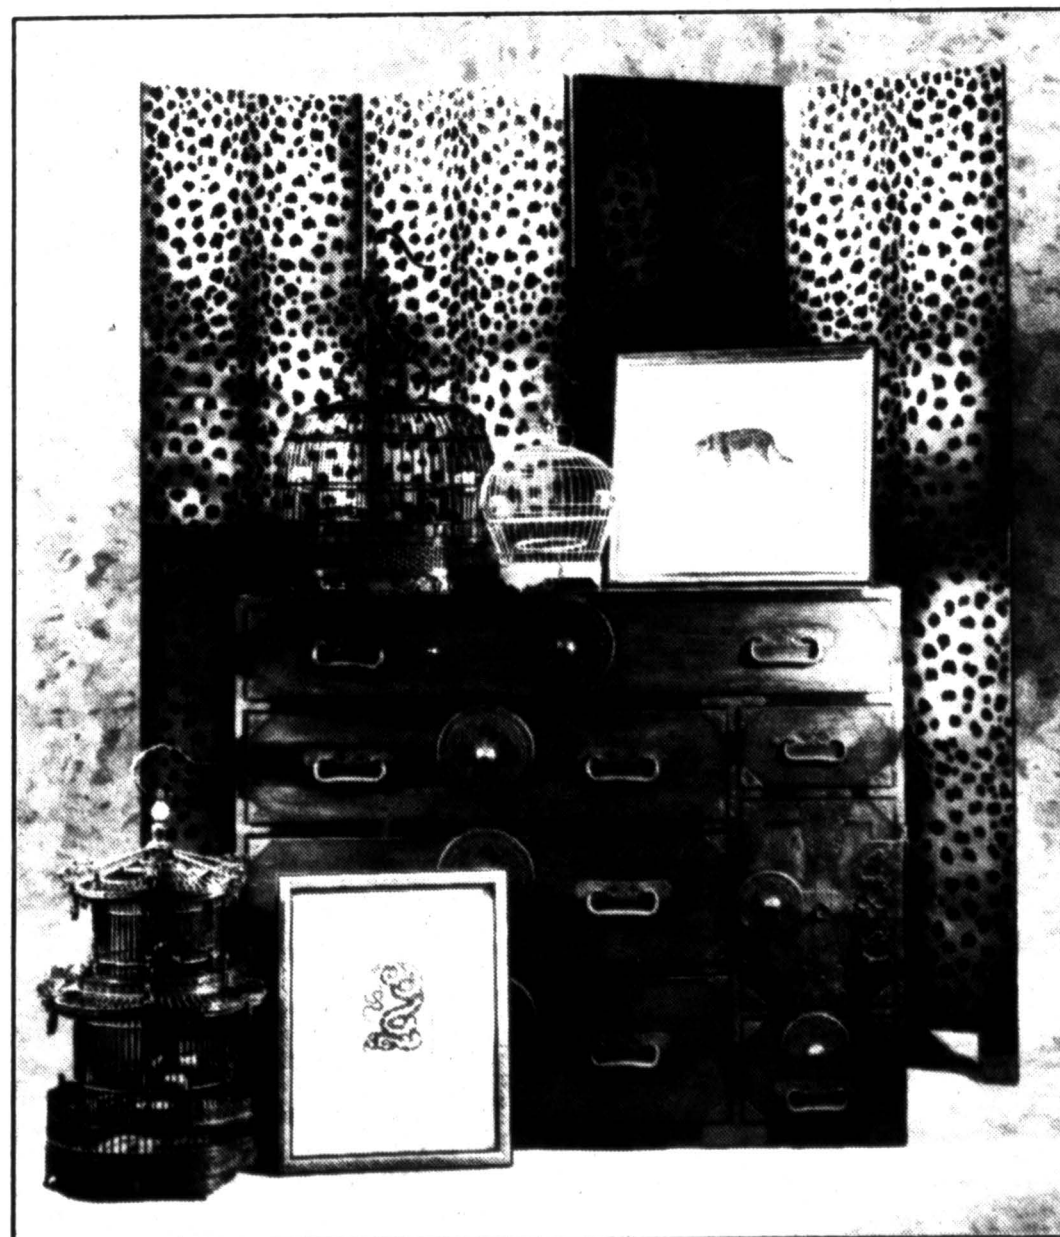

Despite the commission's goal, Commissioner Lance McClair recommended that Cachagua have its own fire district.

"How far do we go to be big brother?," said McClair. "The dilemma is that we are responsible for trying to protect them, while they are trying to protect themselves."

Ileene Crane-Franks said, "If facts and figures were the only issue, annexation would be more reasonable. But, autonomy is extremely important. That can be achieved by the district."

TELEPHONE INFORMATION SERVICE FOR SENIORS OFFERED

The Monterey County Area Agency on Aging (AAA) now offers the Eldercare Locator, a toll free telephone service for information about community services for older people anywhere in the United States.

The Eldercare Locator gives callers access to an extensive network of state and local organizations that serve older people. This national toll-free service will help solve the dilemma many people face today — where to turn for help caring for an aged relative.

The Eldercare Locator can identify the most appropriate information source for senior services anywhere in the country, including services such as legal assistance, protective services, nursing homes and entitlement or benefit issues. Information specialists refer callers to local information and referral services based on the location of the older person.

Anyone can call the Eldercare Locator. The toll-free number is a public service designed to assist older persons and their families locate community resources.

The Eldercare Locator's toll-free number, 1-800-677-1116, is available weekdays from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. (E.S.T.) for callers from anywhere in the United States, including the U.S. territories of Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands. Family members caring for a parent or relative long distance will find the Eldercare Locator especially helpful in identifying community resources.

Since the Eldercare Locator began service in May 1991, more than 10,000 older persons have been assisted. Almost half of the callers are family members interested in locating assistance for the care of an older parent or relative; 37 percent of all callers are older persons interested in locating community services for themselves.

Time out

RED CROSS Ball - Cancelled.
Night of the Round Tables - Postponed a year.
Beaujolais Nouveau Festival - Scrubbed.
Gourmet Gala - Survival threatened.
Natividad Phantasy Ball - Scaled down.
LifeSavers - Hanging on.

The fund-raising scene, outwardly healthy one year ago, appears to be in recession. Major events, anticipated for months and loyally supported, are no more. Gala parties have been trimmed to country club dinner dances. The community calendar listings in The Carmel Pine Cone for the holiday season are down by half compared to last year.

To uncover the story behind the apparent slow-down in the charity dollar market, we interviewed several people who are directly involved in local social events.

Red Cross Ball

Morley Brown organized last year's "Red Cross Ball," a holiday gala harkening back to the grand days of the old Hotel Del Monte. Dashing men in uniform and ladies in ballgowns waltzed the night away in support of the Red Cross.

"We plan to keep it on the social map, but not this year," Brown answered, when queried about the absence of the event on the December calendar. By all appearances the Ball was successful two years running, due in part to Brown's adept staging.

"Sometimes events have to be papered, that is, they give away a lot of comps," Brown explained. "In the case of the 'Red Cross Ball' the military personnel were offered tickets at cost so we would have people in uniform. But in reality we didn't make enough money."

The days of excess and padded guest lists may be over. Brown admits many elaborate events cost so much that after expenses are deducted there is little left over for the charity.

"It's not socially correct to spend so much money," she said. "People have to remember the reason they're contributing in the first place."

The obvious conclusion. Simply write a check to your favorite charity.

"It's a funny thing," Brown remarked. "Special events have been going on since the beginning of time. We could ask for a check but there are some people who want to be seen socially and recognized as contributors. Putting a check in the mail is not the same as being there."

In her estimation however, the most important reason for holding a charitable event is to keep the name of the charity visible in the public eye.

Night of the Round Tables

"The Night of the Round Tables" is a victim of circumstances. Lynn Traynor, development director of Chartwell School, cites a drain on the small volunteer force of parents as the reason for the decision to shelve the annual festive dinner.

"Two events in one year is too much for this little group," she said. "Our students are usually here for two years and when they leave their parents go with them. The chairpeople we had last year aren't here any more. It's hard to keep up such a high level of leadership and energy. We're planning one event, a Kentucky Derby Party in May."

Beaujolais Nouveau Festival

Pebble Beach Company, long known for its special events, this year cancelled the three-year-old "Beaujolais Nouveau Festival." Diane Stracuzzi, director of marketing and communications, gave the reason. "We felt the "Beaujolais was winding down and we decided to focus all our energy on the Pebble Beach Chamber Music Festival."

LifeSavers hasn't set a date for their 1993 event yet, but chances are Rita Coolidge will again be the star attraction.

The "1993 Gourmet Gala" committee is moving ahead with their plans in spite of the impending closure of the local March of Dimes office.

Is the recession to blame? The fundraising experts feel money is not a concern for the type of person who can easily contribute $10,000, $15,000 or $20,000. Instead the recession is a convenient excuse for a recycled group of people who are wearing thin, burning out. To quote one charity regular, "If you've seen one event, you've seen em' all."

Phantasy Ball

Char Etienne, who brought the "Phantasy Ball" to the Monterey Peninsula for two years may speak for many.

"I've pulled back, taken a second look. I don't want to be involved if it's just another dinner. It has to be a terrific cause. That's why I'm involved with the Monterey County AIDS Project."

Change starts with self-examination, a second look. Some time out for re-charging may be needed right now. The charitable event scene on the Monterey Peninsula is long overdue for a face-lift, or at the least, a good night's sleep.

FIRST MURPHY CHRISTMAS

If you're one of those people who collect a new Christmas ornament each year the miniature Milk Shrine is a handpainted memento of early Carmel.

Last year's edition sold out quickly. The 1993 limited edition ornament is modeled on the milk shrine, a custom first originated by Carmel Valley dairyman Perry McDonald. The historic shrine now in front of the First Murphy House belonged to Mrs. Ella Reid Harrison, who bequeathed funds to found the main Carmel library in memory of her husband, Ralph Chandler Harrison. The shrine ornament is available at Derek Rayne, Ltd., and at Caspia Flowers & Gifts.

Ornaments will be also be available during "Tea at the First Murphy" on Friday, Dec. 18, from 2:00 to 4:00 p.m. Local residents are invited to stop by the festively-decorated First Murphy House for afternoon tea, sandwiches and sweets.

REALTORS REVEL

There may be a slump in the real estate market, especially in December, but the Carmel Association of Realtors made good use of the down time to rehearse. They presented "An Old Fashioned Christmas" to a holiday throng of 200 plus at a brunch held recently at The Inn at Spanish Bay.

Musical numbers included "Interest Rates Have Fallen Down," featuring Gayle Durand and Paul Barber, "Down and Out," with Bev Taylor, Tom Fala, Shirley Crist and Paul Barber, an all-star line-up in "10 Days of Escrow," "Homecoming" with a cast that included incoming President Stephen Poohar, "Borpac the Great" with Gerry Hopkins and Dick Schofield, CNN with Jan Williams, Tom Fala's rendition of "Whole Lot of Trouble for a Little Bit O'Love" and the ambitious "Nutcracker Suite: Thelma & Louise" featuring Janice Gistenelli, Cheryl Heyermann, Doug Davenport and Charles Beren.

"Boney Fingers," included an audience sing-along:

*"My listings are stale, but they're all that I've got,
The whole darn business is goin' to pot,
Fort Ord closing isn't helping a lot,
Maybe things will get a little better in the New Year,

TAKIGAWA DESIGN WINS NATIONAL HONORS

Jerry Takigawa Design has recently received multiple design excellence honors for four separate projects.

The firm's Lux One book, flagship publication for Carmel's Center for Photographic Art, was chosen from entries from California, Washington and Oregon for inclusion in the 27th annual Western Art Director's Club West Coast Exhibit held in San Francisco.

The piece was also selected from more than 35,000 entries to be included in Print magazine's 1992 Regional Design Annual. It will also be included in the "One Color & Two Color" exhibition of the American Institute of Graphic Arts (AIGA) show in New York, and was selected from entries submitted from 16 countries for inclusion in the publication of "Color Count: Impressive Work with Three Colors or Less", based in Washington DC.

The Center for Photographic Art is a non-profit public benefit corporation established to increase awareness and understanding of photography as a fine art form. Although Lux One, featuring the work of noted photographers Paul Caponigro and Huntington Witherill, was limited by budget to only two colors, the piece was recognized for outstanding use of materials and innovative design.

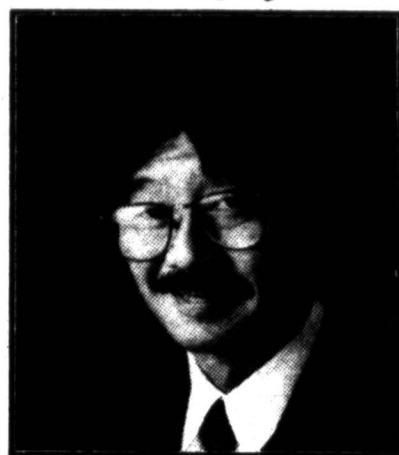

A nationally published testimonial ad campaign series for The Nunes Company, designed by Takigawa and written by Jess Knubis of Knubis Advertising Public Relations will also be included in the 27th annual Western Art Director's Club West Coast Exhibit.

An invitation designed for KAZU Radio's fifth annual "A Tasty Affair" will also be included in the "Color Count: Impressive Work with Three Colors or Less" exhibit.

Takigawa's promotional piece for Intel Corporation's "486 Launch" received an Award of Merit from San Francisco's International Association of Business Communicators.

Takigawa Design is a full-service design firm working in the areas of corporate identity, packaging and graphic communications.

Padre Sports Review

By James Genone

Padre girls dominate PG basketball tournament

THE BALANCED attack of the lady Padres on both offense and defense led them to wins in San Lorenzo Valley and in the Pacific Grove Breakers Classic last week. Sparked by standouts Jen Rosenthal, Erin Kraft, and Doreen Evans, the Padres seemed unstoppable as they moved their preseason record to 7-1.

After beating San Lorenzo Valley 48-38 last Monday, the Padres were confident going into the PG tourney. With three starters averaging in double figures, the Padres were prepared to make a good showing, and they did.

In the first round on Thursday, the girls faced Pinewood, which proved to be no competition at all as Carmel decimated them 46-28. The tandem of Evans, Rosenthal, and Kraft accounted for 40 of the Padres 46 points. Carmel then played Seaside Friday, beating them by a three-point margin of 51-48. Evans had 15 points, Rosenthal added 14, and both pulled down seven boards. Kraft also had 10 points.

In the final game against RLS, Carmel's little known Chic Ubuara was the spark plug that ignited the Padres to a 10-point victory, 49-39. Ubuara, the Carmel point guard, scored 12 points, including two three-pointers, distributing the ball to Evans, Rosenthal, and Kraft; who had 10, 11, and 12 points respectively. The Padre girls face Watsonville and Monte Vista this week, and then are off until Jan. 5, when they open league play against King City.

Boys Basketball

The Padres continued their winning ways last week, improving their record to 5-1 after wins over Seaside and North Monterey County. Great execution and an ability to adjust to opposing defenses has made Carmel a tough team to beat in the early going.

Last Tuesday, at home against Seaside, the Padres put on one of their best offensive showings of the season as they beat the Spartans by the score of 69-57.

"We played one of our best games of the year against Seaside," said Padre assistant coach Ron Powell. "We took advantage of the way they play their defense by making good passes."

Carmel dominated the Spartans, who were in last years state finals, by consistently taking the ball to the hoop with crisp passes and easy layups. Junior R.J. Powell led the team with 22 points, eight assists, five steals, and five rebounds. Jason Lindgren also had a big game, contributing 14 points and seven rebounds, and Nate Stiles added eight points, seven assists, and five rebounds. Ben Fahrner had 12 points and Jason Edwards scored 10.

After the win against Seaside, things didn't come quite so easily for the Padres when they traveled to North Monterey County last Friday. With starting center Ryan Edwards injured in the Seaside game, his younger brother Jason had to step into the starting role. In addition, R.J. Powell got into early foul trouble, so the team was essentially playing without two starters. The score was close until the end, but the Padres went on to win 56-47.

"I think we underestimated them (North Monterey)," said coach Powell.

"We had to make some adjustments to their defense, but the kids played well with Edwards out, and R.J. in foul trouble," said head coach Rich Frank.

Despite early fouls, Powell went on to score 15 points and pull down eight rebounds. But in Powell's absence, it was Nate Stiles that took over. In addition to his 10 points, Stiles also had eight rebounds, seven assists, five steals, and two blocked shots. His 14 assists in the two games are surprising, considering his size, and the fact that he plays the forward position.

"He passes the ball real well for a big man, a skill I think he gets from Waterpolo," said coach Powell, referring to the fact that Stiles was the starting goalie for Carmel's Waterpolo team.

Looking ahead to this weekend, the Padres host the annual Carmel Tournament that will feature Palma, Monterey, Seaside, Salinas, and Santa Cruz. The Padres should make a good showing, but they will have to play well to beat the Chieftains of Palma, who were state champs a year ago. The competition is tough this year, but the Padres can beat any of the teams they will face if they play hard.

"If the kids execute and pound the boards, we won't have any problems," said coach Powell.

Field Hockey

The Padres are still looking for their first win but are improving. Following a loss to Santa Catalina 3-0 last Tuesday, Carmel played to a 0-0 tie against Monterey last Thursday. Action resumes against York on Jan. 7.

Wrestling

The Carmel wrestling squad made it's first appearance of the year last weekend at the Alisal High Tournament in Salinas. Senior Timber Trotter placed fourth in the 172-pound weight class with a 3-2 record. The Padres are a young team this year, and should improve with more experience. Their next match is at home against Gonzales on Jan. 7.

The exam, given only twice this school year, is open to anyone 16 or older, whether enrolled in school or not. Those under 16 may take the CHSPE if they have completed the 10th grade or are enrolled in the second semester of 10th grade. Many students who pass the CHSPE continue to attend school; in any event, anyone under 18 who passes the exam must have parental permission in order to leave school before regular graduation.

A Certificate of Proficiency is awarded by the State Board of Education to those who pass the CHSPE. This certificate is equivalent by law to high school graduation and will be accepted as such for any purpose requiring a high school diploma. The U.S. Civil Service Commission has ruled that the Certificate of Proficiency shall also be accepted in applications for federal civilian employment.

CONSUME MODERATELY DURING HOLIDAYS

When you are celebrating with friends or relatives, have one person agree not to drink alcohol and take responsibility for getting everyone home safely. Have a safe and healthy holiday season.

MONTEREY RESIDENT TO PARTICIPATE IN NATIONAL TRUST PRESERVATION LEADERSHIP TRAINING INSTITUTE

Judith Lehman-Ellis of the Historic Preservation Commission of the City of Monterey, is one of a select group of participants in an upcoming program designed for local and statewide leaders who are in positions to influence preservation activities in their communities.

The week-long workshop takes place at the Asilomar Conference Center on the Monterey Peninsula (Jan. 3-10, 1993) where the city of Carmel will serve as a "living laboratory." The participants will study the role of historic preservation in the future of the community.

The Preservation Leadership Training program will emphasize the most up-to-date, effective preservation techniques, including training in current preservation practices, issues and action strategies. The sessions will include lectures, tours, class projects, role playing and participatory learning experiences.

National, state and local experts in preservation and organizational development comprise the workshop faculty, giving the 33 participants a balanced national perspective and a network of statewide and local resources for the future.

'PHANTOM OF THE OPERA' TICKET SALES BENEFIT FOOD BANK

Some of the individuals who attended the Nov. 5 performance of "Phantom of the Opera" at Sherwood Hall were also helping fight hunger in Monterey County.

The Theater on the Square, the play's production company, donated $1 to the Food Bank for Monterey County for each of the 1,462 advance tickets sold. The donation was negotiated by KCBA TV, which aired more than 100 announcements promoting the play in exchange for the gift to the Food Bank.

"This donation will go a long way in the fight against hunger, allowing the Food Bank to distribute more than $15,000 worth of food to needy people," said Food Bank Executive Director Neil Thompson. Due to the large amount of donated food and other community support, the Food Bank is able to distribute $11 of food with each dollar donated.

The need for emergency and supplemental food is especially high during the holidays and the winter months which follow, when many of the 75 soup kitchens, food pantries and other agencies served by the Food Bank run low on or out of resources.

DOUBLETREE HOTEL ASSISTS MONTEREY VISITORS IN NEED

In the true spirit of holiday giving and hospitality, the Doubletree Hotel Monterey will again provide short-term, emergency lodging for needy travelers visiting Monterey this holiday season.

Since its nationwide launch in 1987, the program has donated more than 7,600 hotel rooms valued at $750,000 to families traveling from out of town to visit loved ones receiving medical treatment. The Doubletree Hotel Monterey has participated for five years, donating rooms to its local partners in the program: Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula, Family Resource Center, YWCA Monterey Peninsula, The Salvation Army and Catholic Charities.

Further information about the program is available by calling the Doubletree Hotel Monterey at 649-4511.

Doris Day's Best Friends

By Doris Day

Earl the Pearl

THROUGH THE years I've been fortunate to meet some really wonderful friends through my animal welfare work. Many of them are "pen pals" who share my love for the critters. They often live a great distance away, yet they have joined my pet foundation and they write to me about their rescue work in their own communities and they tell so many beautiful stories about the four-leggers.

One of these friends, Earle Bingley, lives in Vancouver, B.C. He makes me feel so proud because of his fierce and utter devotion to all of God's creatures. Earle has had more than his share of ups and downs in his life, yet he always has a smile on his sweet face and a song in his heart — a heart that overflows with love for the animals.

Most recently, Earle heard about a 13-year-old bearded collie who was in desperate need. "Beau" had been rescued by the SPCA from a horrendous home and had spent the past three months at the animal shelter, waiting to be adopted. Now, it's difficult enough to find a home for a 13-year-old dog, but when that dog has cataracts and also happens to be deaf, his chances drop to almost zero. Luckily for Beau, Earle came along determined to give Beau "a few years of the greatest life in the world." Are you beginning to understand why I admire this man?

Walk-for-Life

Earle believes that he was put on this earth to do something really significant and although most people feel he's certainly done more than that, he isn't satisfied. So — he recently established the Canadian Voice for Animals Foundation and he has planned a 1993 Walk-for-Life to raise funds. The Walk will begin in Los Angeles and will take Earl up the coast, to Vancouver B.C., then across Canada and on to the Doris Day Animal League headquarters in Washington, D.C. Why, you ask? Because, in Earle's words, he's "mad as hell" about the millions of animals who die each year simply because there aren't enough homes. He wants to do something about it and this Walk will give him the opportunity.

Earle isn't bashful about asking for help when it comes to the animals and his enthusiasm is so great, even he is surprised by the number of people who want to join in. When Earle was thinking about designing a poster for his Walk, he naturally decided to go for the best. He contacted Daniel Izzard, an internationally renowned artist whose new works were being exhibited at the Harrison Galleries in Vancouver. I think you could have knocked Earle over with a feather when Mr. Izzard greeted him and told him he would be delighted to design the poster! We're all thrilled and can't wait to see what this wonderfully talented man does for the animals.

That's my friend Earle. A one-in-a-million kind of guy. Keep up the good work. We're all behind you one hundred percent!

That's it for this week. See you next time!

(Written in collaboration with Judy Ruby, director, Doris Day Pet Foundation, Los Angeles).

"I moved to Valley Heights from another retirement community in the area. I needed to find an arrangement which would allow me to be closer to my wife who requires care. At Valley Heights I have the independence I need and at Valley Convalescent my wife receives the care she requires. I also appreciate the spaciousness of the dining room and the versatility in the menus."

—Oscar Dupuis
Santa Cruz, CA

I have lived & worked in the area for many years. My move to Valley Heights was only natural. I enjoy the spaciousness of my two bedroom apartment and the full kitchen. I entertain often in the dining room so I appreciate the dining hours allowing me to be served anytime between 5-7 PM."

Father Farrell's Wisdom

Time for a faith lift?

OH LORD, give us the grace and wisdom to see through the Christmas trimming and understand that the true message of Christmas is peace on earth to men of good will.

St. John the Baptist told the ancient world, waiting anxiously for the Messiah, to get off the dime, to "shape up," to "clean up their act," to get their thing together. This message is still valid. We all play the Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde game. We are angels of good will, "jolly-kind-fellows-well-met" in public and we are miserable Scrooges at home.

Oh Lord, help us to be kind, thoughtful and considerate to all those dwelling under our roof and help us to begin doing that today.

If your families die of shock it will be a happy death.

Finally, here is some advice from Dr. Farrell, plastic surgeon. "If Christmas time causes us to get all wrinkled up with worry and care, it may be just the time to get a faith lift."

Meals on Wheels needs volunteers

DRIVERS AND other volunteers are need to deliver 250 meals daily to shut-ins and the handicapped on the peninsula for Meals on Wheels.

According to Chuck Poland, a Carmel volunteer, 280 homes are served with three meals five days a week from Carmel Valley to Marina, but 25 volunteer drivers are needed daily to deliver those meals.

Each shut-in is delivered a breakfast, one cold meal (usually a sandwich, salad and juice), and one hot meal. He added that volunteers are also needed to prepare meals at the Meals on Wheels facility at 700 Jewell Ave. in Pacific Grove.

The agency also serves lunch to about 75 seniors at the facility every day. If you would like to volunteer to help out, contact Meals on Wheels at 375-4454.

Meals on Wheels is a non-profit organization.

The Golden Years

By Myles Williams

Zora Arkus-Duntov, at 82, was still putting his 1989 Corvette sports car through its paces almost every day around Grosse Pointe, Michigan. From 1953 to 1975 the Belgian-born engineer worked for Chevrolet and is credited with performance innovations that make Corvettes of that vintage valued classics today. Duntov combined his engineering know-how with a love of racing. He competed at Le Mans in 1954 and 1955, and set a speed record of 150 mph in 1956 at Daytona Beach. Although no longer a Corvette designer, he remained a consultant to Chevrolet.

Aging, even with disabilities, is not a disaster, according to Philadelphia resident Maggie Kuhn, age 85. "It is a triumph over disappointment, failure, loss, illness... We are more human than ever before because we see so clearly how finite life is." Kuhn founded the Gray Panthers in the 1970s to take on television networks and others who portrayed the elderly in derogatory terms.

Remember when? 1920 — Among the year's hit songs: "Avalon," "I'll Be With You in Apple Blossom Time" and "When My Baby Smiles at Me."

ANITA BENSON'S current show at Pacific Grove Art Center includes this acrylic of the late Katherine Mendoza. Says Anita: "She had no family...Last August, I was at my brother's cabin in the Teton Mountains and did a drawing of her with wings. When I returned, I found out she had died. She had been looking forward to my exhibit, knowing she'd be the guest of honor. This show is dedicated to her."

Benson paints legends

By WILLIAM MINOR

ONCE UPON a time there was a place called Pagrovia: a legendary land that sprang from the town of Pacific Grove.

Flights of gulls and one fish (!) cut diagonal patterns across the steeple of its Indian red Episcopal church. A black and white cow grazed contentedly far below.

Hunched, isolated citizens traversed crosswalks marked off by rose and magenta — heads and bodies caught in a nimbus of light surrounded by the gray mist of concrete.

Local artist Anita Benson, attracted by this "unique ambience," its "exquisite moodiness," has richly, handsomely articulated both in her exhibition called Pagrovia — Local Images, on view at the Pacific Grove Art Center through Jan. 2.

Arts & Leisure

One of the cardinal figures represented in this show (16 pieces are either devoted to her or have her present, occasionally as one of those bantam figures you find in the bottom left-hand corner of a "Chinese" landscape) is Katherine Mendoza, an archetypal Pagrovian whose forlorn but substantive presence is shown sitting in the shade of a tree outside the Portofino Cafe; attended (bright yellow-green background) by butterflies; ascending or descending stairs—always isolated, alone; the most striking painting depicting her within that rose-marked crosswalk mentioned above.

Anita has cited Edward Hopper with regard to Pagrovia's "old architecture," but one painting provides Katherine a de Chirico setting: a single enigmatic arrow redirecting her timeless stroll up a street at whose end she will meet herself emerging from behind a building. Another work shows Katherine ascending with wings (painted not long before the "subject" died), yet every piece seems to bear witness to the otherworldly sojourn of this tenacious lady whose "signature" was a lavender knit helmet headpiece.

Pagrovia's rich "urban" landscape is also represented: from St. Mary's By-the-Sea church (as mentioned) to City Hall; from somebody's inviting red carpet stairway leading up to a solitary hibachi to a Fountain Ave. more confining than it really is — all set beneath a sky more severe, blue, menacing than it usually is: Pagrovia rendered bleakly "Midwestern," spare, caught in some sort of twilight decline, until you step back to the center of the gallery and discover that, as a whole, this legendary place, this exhibit, is actually dancing, buoyantly alert and alive: the effect achieved, technically, by Anita's keen, dynamic sense of color: subtle modulations of complementary "orange" homes/"blue" sky, "red" buildings/"green" palm leaves juxtaposed; standard colors turned sumptuously avocado or peach.

Adjacent site

The theme of isolation (perhaps not by design, but a valid contemporary preoccupation?) continues in an adjacent gallery containing photographs by Sally Jorgensen, Rebecca Bishop Fuentes and Carolyn Berry (plus assemblages by the latter).

This show is titled Recollecting People and Places, but the nostalgia is uncompromised, tough.

Jorgensen states that her portraits "capture people in moments of solitude, when they are inside of themselves," and the "frozen moment" caught by all three artists tends to disclose just that: the single figure of Berry's Mom bending to a grave in Sweet Springs, Missouri; the "so old and so strong" miraculous face, firm yet spindly arms and huge hands of Fuentes' Maria Limon; Jorgensen's Hopper-like woman at a window; a man having Breakfast Alone; another single figure (warped wooden floor, polystyrene tabletop, empty bottle and glass ashtray) Taking a Smoke in Union Springs, Alabama.

These figures seem sad in their solitary stasis, yet do reveal, as Jorgensen promises, "a deeper state of being."

A third gallery features works by Tho-

Clint movie named best

By JOHN DETRO

IT'S A truism that this country's movie production scene follows trends.

And nominators and voters within the Academy Awards process usually watch trends set up by other prize-granting groups.

These facts could add up to something special for Carmel resident Clint Eastwood when Oscar time rolls around again.

The Los Angeles Film Critics Association (LAFCA) voted on the 1992 film year's first serious slate of winners.

In balloting announced a few days ago, LAFCA went all out where Eastwood's latest film — Unforgiven — was concerned.

Called the best

It was named best picture, Clint the best actor and director. Gene Hackman's work in the Western drew his selection as best supporting actor. And the screenplay by David Webb Peoples was designated best script.

As deadline approached, Eastwood was away from the peninsula on a film project and unavailable for comment.

Clint plays a reformed gunslinger who returns to old ways so that his children

Commentary: Bach on The Hill

IN OUR nation's capital, there is a museum devoted to African art. Jack Kennedy would wander there and, through long appreciation, name the tribal sources of new pieces without consulting the catalogue.

JFK also loved the work of jazz tenor saxist Dexter Gordon. On the town in Manhattan, he could discuss harmonic adventuring with Dexter and not sound like a would-be hipster or similar moron.

And, you know, it's darned fine when powerful people have this extra capacity — the love of various art forms plus the conviction that artists can teach us much about life lived well.

These thoughts surface as one ponders the appointment of Leon Panetta to a major post in the Clinton administration. Panetta is a tough, smart man — and an expert mover on The Hill. Something else deserves saying here and now.

Brother Joe Panetta hit home when he remarked about Leon: "He could have been a concert pianist. He'll still sit and play."

All true. At age 12, Leon appeared in concert at Carmel's Sunset Center. Listeners were not ashamed to call him Prodigy. And the intense boy's piano instructor — the late David Alberto — received wide respect.

Over the years, Panetta indeed has played at local benefits. The touch and concentration have never deserted him.

This's major stuff. If certain older politicians and classic economists were important tutors for Leon Panetta, so were Papa Bach and Mozart and Beethoven. As Hemingway might have remarked, our country's new budget director has been in there with the best — and the clarity gained via such study will contribute to decisions as long as the man makes them.

It's impossible to say at this moment if Bill Clinton's team really can drain the congressional swamp and put our system back to effectual work. At the same time, it's mighty promising that a key official spent his formative years with such demanding souls as Palestrina and Poulenc.

Growing up with any creative giants does something unalterable to one's vision and daily sense of things. So it's not silly to say that Papa Bach's deep logic has a spokesperson on The Hill. It's not silly to believe that artists in all media have gained ground due to the selection of Leon Panetta.

Camerata Singers schedule concert

By JOHN DETRO

IN THEIR 12th season, the magical Camerata Singers of Monterey County will perform at 8 p.m. Friday, Dec. 18, at Carmel Mission Basilica.

They will appear, of course, under the direction of Dr. Vahe Aslanian. Tickets are available through the Theater Alliance (655-3200) or Do Re Mi Music in The Barnyard.

Major offering of this concert: premiere performance in this country of the 18th century Mass in D Major by Leonardo Leo, a work recently edited and transcribed by Dr. Aslanian. Featured here will be soprano Linda Purdy, mezzo soprano Cathy Findley, contralto Carla Cook Olavson, tenor Gene Albin, bass Reg Huston.

First part of the program will bring forth Christmas music. Lou Harrison compositions will open and close the set — A Joyous Procession and A Solemn Procession. In the air will be sounds made by handbells, tambourines and trombones.

AT CARMEL Mission on Wednesday, Dec. 23, will be the celebrated Chanticleers ("an orchestra of voices") from the San Francisco Bay Area.

Performances were scheduled at 5 p.m. and 8 p.m. with tickets available at Do Re Mi and Carmel Plaza.

The rubric: A Chanticleer Christmas. Featured will be the Christmas Spiritual Medley arranged by Musical Director Joseph Jennings. Another highlight will be the singing of Franz Biebl's Ave Maria.

"The magnificent acoustics of the Mission will resound with Renaissance masterworks, seasonal favorites in new arrangements and joyful spirituals," says Jennings. "Nothing touches the heart and soul as much as the glorious sounds of Christmas."

Other composers on the program: Praetorius, Palestrina, Nanino.

MONTEREY COUNTY Symphony Chorus and Brass Choir, conducted by Music Director Clark Suttle, stand ready to inaugurate the new series at Mayflower Presbyterian Church in Pacific Grove.

The initial series offering will be a candle light Holiday Concert there at 7:30 p.m. on Saturday, Dec. 19.

Although the event is sold out through advance ticket sales, Symphony staffers will accept names for a waiting list (624-8511). Any returned ducats will be sold to those thereon.

With Maestro Suttle, Symphony principal trumpet Adam Gordon has selected a program of Baroque and modern music featuring four trumpets, three trombones, horn, tuba and percussion.

On the second half of the program, the 40-voice chorus will join the brass section to perform works by Baroque composers Buxtehude and Praetorius and arrangements of traditional carols by David Willcocks and Daniel Pinkham.

The series is supported by grants from Pacific Grove Arts Commission, Roundtable Pizza and more than 70 founding members. The second concert — Chorus Americana — will take place on Feb. 20 and feature choral music by Randall Thomson and Leonard Bernstein.

PETER ILYICH Tchaikovsky's Eugene Onegin will be broadcast live from Manhattan's Metropolitan Opera House on Saturday, Dec. 19, via an international radio network. It will be heard locally over KAZU-FM beginning at 10:30 a.m.

Mirella Freni will sing Tatiana with Sergei Leiferkus in the title role (his Met debut), Jerry Hadley as Lenski, Nicolai Ghiaurov as Prince Gremin, Briggitta Svenden as Olga. Conductor Seiji Ozawa also will make his first appearance for the Met.

During the first intermission, editor William Livingstone of Stereo Review will interview former Met mezzo-soprano Regina Resnik.

THE MONTEREY Peninsula College Piano Ensemble class taught by Wade Parks will offer a free public concert at 3 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 20, in the MPC Music Hall.

mas W. Brooks entitled Water — and a very porous display it is, indeed.

If these pastel and oil sketches are intended to suggest more than they state, they seem to fall short of significant suggestion. The work, given its heavy (sea crags, stretches of beach with cliffs, rock and foliage) subject matter, is thin, disembodied — its incompleteness suggesting only that.

Connie

Two hallway galleries at the Art Center are devoted to 10 years of work by Connie Pearlstein: handsomely knit garments and Bargello/Florentine pieces intended to please the eye and to educate viewers as to the history of the former (knitting and Bargello) and a "modest" history of spinning.

I'm not sure Connie Pearlstein — a spunky, even salty on occasion lady who approaches her arduous craft with all the intricate artistry, erudition and abundant dedication it demands — would approve of my lust to wear one of her creations — a handsome dark blue, gray, vermillion sweater—home (pragmatic on occasion, I was once nearly ejected from the Aquarium for mentioning a charcoal grill and hot butter before a display of crustaceans), but she did provide me an education I was sorely in need of, pointing up the delights — colors and patterns which recede or come forward according to different viewings from 10, 20, 30 feet away — of "pillows" displayed in the long hall: actually the art of Bargello, the name embracing an entire family of needlepoint stitches worked on canvas, reaching "a high level of development in the late 1500s ... worked in various patterns of steps or blocks forming repeat geometric designs"; producing, in Connie's words, "your own heirlooms."

She isolates pure color from paintings (by Cezanne, John La Farge, August Gay) and incorporates it into her work, as homage.

"No new ground," she says. "I want to encourage people to get back to knitting, to learn how to spin. It's not boring, but a form of meditation. Gandhi spun wool every day. You get centered, your feet doing one thing, your hands another", yet such an intricate act of assimilation — the exhibit's range including Byzantine tile patterns, Florentine point (long and short stitches alternating), Kaffe Fassett's revolutionary multi-colored knitting, the archetypal "growth" patterns (1,2,3,5,8,13,21,34,55, etc.) of the Fibonacci sequence, the logarithmic spiral—produces original work stamped with Connie's own proud skill and personality.

She spins her own yarn (Not drop spinning, but more of a "pick it off the ground" technique, like being a Classicist without Latin or Greek"), and spent a full year preparing the material present in Susan Bradshaw's prize-winning blankets, also displayed.

A rich array of information on knitting, spinning, Bargello, local sources for materials, a full bibliography, an article on the Fibonacci sequence itself — all this is available: the exhibit an educational as well as visual treat also open to the public until Jan. 2.

Holiday benefit for kids slated

A HOLIDAY benefit for Lakota Sioux children on South Dakota reservations will be held at Casa Gutierrez in downtown Monterey on Saturday, Dec. 19.

Between 2-9 p.m., activities will include Lakota Sioux singers, dancers and speakers. Admission is free.

Native American groups are sponsoring the event in cooperation with One Earth/One People Peace Vision and Two Bulls Women's Society, which collect and distribute toys, warm clothing and blankets to the youngsters.

Donors are asked to pre-package and identify items. Spokespersons Sonny and Elaine Reyna say cash donations will be welcomed to "cover costs for drivers and trucks leaving on Dec. 20."

Portofino show

CARMEL VALLEY artist Ethel Alvy will have an exhibit next month at Portofino Coffee House in Pacific Grove, it was announced this week.

The reception will be held between 7-9 p.m. on Jan. 8. And then the show will stay up through January, according to Portofino's Barbara Murphy.

The overriding theme: Art in Boxes. (See photos accompanying this article.)

"I collect objects with nothing in mind," says Alvy. "That way, I can find things I'm not looking for."

And: "I'm influenced by myths underlying our culture. I use these found objects to construct my boxes. The objects have to hold some mystery, first by themselves and then in combination to form an environment or impression. The objects acquire new identities as their origins are reinvented."

She studied at UCLA with John Altoon and William Brice. Her work is in private Central Coast and Southern California collections.

ANSEL ADAMS Center in San Francisco has these shows:

• Maximum Repose: Portraits by Ansel Adams. These photographs span his entire career and include images of such photographic luminaries as Alfred Stieglitz, George O'Keeffe, Minor White, Dorothea Lange, Edward Weston. Through

Feb. 14 of next year.

• Elliott Erwitt: To the Dogs. Through Jan. 17. Snapshots of four-footed personalities. About these curious photographs, Erwitt has made a statement that is equally as curious: "Essentially, these are pictures of people."

The facility is at 250 Fourth St. Information: (415) 495-7000.

Sherry's show beguiles

By JOHN DOTSON

IN THIS day and age, what knowledge is in itself is highly questionable. Often, it seems, those who wonder at all about the meaning of meaning do so in splendid isolation.

But in Family Secrets, actress-author Sherry Glazer has centered herself in what she knows, and communicates what she knows through this virtuoso performance in languages verbal and non-verbal.

Co-written with husband Greg Howells (who also directs), the play presents a postmodern version of the Ages of Man, except the psyche of one man, father Mort Fisher, seems sallow in comparison to the lurid libidos of the four women — mother Beverly, daughters Fern and Sandra, and even grandmother Rose.

Telling portrait

At-large, the action is a telling "portrait of a Jewish family that has undergone the culture shock of having moved from New York to California," reflecting something of Glazer's own migration from her natal Bronx.

But these characters are not caricatures. They are voices that have been heard and incubated before being written and performed. Each monologue unfolds from the center out with distinct velocity and nuance, and the way Glazer navigates the transition zones between them is simply beguiling.

From the first syllables (in the apt stage environment designed by Almee Spencer), I felt accomplished theatrical poise and craft.

Glazer does not allude, she personifies Mort Fisher, "Master of the House," a mild-mannered patriarch assimilating with difficulty the transmogrification of his eldest daughter, Fern, into Kahari, the Lesbian lover, turned into the pregnant Earth-mother by her companion Miguel.

Fern some time ago decided, "She's not Jewish anymore," but rather a believer in the goddess, "a pagan witch." Mort plaintively asks: "Why can't you be happy like a normal person? Where I come from, happy was different. Happy was simple."

Perfect mother

Enter Beverly, "The Perfect Mother," who found 1965 to be "the perfect time to go crazy. My husband had a good job. We had major medical."

Institutionalized, Bev reports her adventures as

"Mary the Mother of Jesus," only too "Glad to get to the hospital. There are people there who need me."

After a mental health swirl of thorazine, shock treatments, ballroom dancing, fencing, and contract bridge, Bev has assimilated California with the assistance of Bunny, her therapist, who has prescribed lithium: "Now I'm grounded." Having her mother's ashes shipped west (UPS), Bev contemplates a "woman so lost she couldn't get to know her own daughter, and the only way I could get to know her was to go crazy." And though she seems at one with her mineralized serenity, she quietly shares, "I can't watch the news. It makes me cry and cry."

Truth-telling

Fern, aka Kahari, begins her truth-telling by describing her "menstrual ritual," suggesting that in her new model, the process would best be described as "femstruating," since it "has nothing to do with men."

Still, her own sensitive Miguel is building her "a menstrual hut. That way I can bleed in peace and connect." The experience of her "Homebirth" becomes acutely immediate to men in the audience, I feel, when she testifies how Miguel might share something of the experience: "The only way he could feel this is if I bent down and bit him on the testicles. And I mean every will have what they need. The Pine Cone review said of Unforgotten back in August:

Clint...

"Booze is vital to (anti-hero Bill) Munny's reversion. He brags that he has been dry for more than a decade; the instant he sips from (a) whiskey bottle we know that he again will become the cold slaughterer of not pigs but men.

"Munny sober falls face first into pig slime and has a hard time getting up on his horse. Munny fortified by firewater becomes myth-sized....

"How many Old West heroes really were sociopaths whose great deeds were done in alcoholic blackouts? It's a darned decent question that Clint makes us ask about the myth-producing mechanisms which brought him fame."

MICHAEL CAINE plays Scrooge while Kermit the Frog is accountant Bob Cratchit in the Disney presentation of The Muppet Christmas Carol from the late Jim Henson's organization. Check the movie listings today.

BOOKS, ETC.

Book Bag

By John Detro

Holiday hints

MAJOR GIFTS most likely have been bought and wrapped by this date. But folks always can use bright and inexpensive sock-stuffers.

For my birth anniversary in November, a friend presented A Little Irish Songbook.

The 4-1/4x6-1/4" item comes from Chronicle Books, contains 59 pages with music, costs $6.95. And learning the traditional lyrics (people's poetry) has been great fun.

This title fits easily into jacket pockets. Full color illustrations by Ian McCullough are worth the price of admission all by themselves.

Actually, there's a whole series of these "little" books inspired by The Green Isle and issued by that same company:

A Little Irish Engagement Calendar — Illustrated. Includes proverbs, toasts, traditional customs, recipes.

Irish Proverbs — More than 50 of them. Hand-scribed and illustrated by Karen Bailey.

Irish Toasts — "Traditional, sentimental, bawdy, tongue-in-cheek, all full of warmth and humor."

Irish Laws — Illustrated in full color. Early ordinances which give perspective on that society of ancient times.

A Little Irish Cookbook — Illustrated with watercolors. Nearly 50 traditional recipes.

IN THE same vein, anyone clubbed stupid by the gift-finding process will gain refreshment via the new Buying The Best — 1993. This hybrid magazine and shopper's guide may be obtained at leading hotels and shops throughout our peninsula. (It's distributed in San Francisco too.)

Publishers Barbara and Ray A. March deserve more than passing notice for what they've accomplished here. The layouts, color work, art reproductions and photography all are top drawer.

Moreover, the articles don't come close to being mindless puff pieces. They offer honest insights re: this beautiful area and some of its main events and pursuits.

Why?

I like the spread which draws responses from various creative types on why they reside here.

Mystery writer Robert Campbell: "Carmel possesses an identity more distinctly than any other place in which I've lived. There are people here prepared to strive, in a rare display of participatory democracy, to maintain that unique identity."

Author Riane Eisler: "The fog gives me a sense of probing the mysteries of what is possible, of peace and inner calm."

Clint Eastwood: "There's no place in the world prettier and more relaxed to be in. You can still walk the streets of Carmel in the evening; it's a nice place to be."

We also get Lewis Scott writing about antiques, Ken Peterson (Monterey Bay Sanctuary), Doug Ramsey (Monterey Jazz Festival), Ray ("Golf the easy way"), Barbara (modern craftspersons), Carmel Cultural Director Brian Donoghue (the scene he knows best), Michael Jones (restaurants), David Ligare (the quality of light), so much more.

You'll enjoy the brief, clear prose looks at the careers of various artists — Gordon Newell, Brett Weston, Andrea Johnson, William Ritschel, Donald Teague, Jay Hannah, Gail Packer, Will Bullas, others.

It's only $3 per copy. Quite the bargain.

CARMEL BOOK EMPORIUM

This fine bookshop emphasizes high quality and 60 sections (ultimately 100) and a big stone fireplace round which folks may browse contentedly. Management promises computerized ordering that assures "the best possible turnaround time."

Special attention is given to mysteries, creative writing, the lively arts — and of course the tops in contemporary fiction. Videos include such special contexts as Oscar-winning Best Pictures over the past 20 years. And PBS productions. And music tapes and CDs (local players too). Before long, Carmel Book Emporium will add a cafe — perfect meeting spot.

On Lobos Lane in The Crossroads (a few steps from Safeway). Open 10-6 Sunday/Thursday; 10-8 Friday/Saturday. 626-BOOK.

HIDDEN VALLEY, AN INSTITUTE OF THE PERFORMING ARTS

One of the treasures of the Carmel/Monterey area is the internationally known and respected arts training center, Hidden Valley. Dedicated to the development of gifted young musicians and dancers, Hidden Valley also sponsors international master classes with some of the great vocal and instrumental artists of our time, operates a dance center with approximately 175 students, presents a yearly chamber music series, the Master Festival, commissions and produces opera, and offers 40 weeks' per year of Elderhostel courses. Its popular Fridays at Eight presents an eclectic series of performers.

For further information regarding Hidden Valley or any of its concerts or programs, please call (408) 659-3115.

MONTEREY BAY COFFEEHOUSE BOOKSHOP

Opened by Estelle Cimino in November 1991, this downtown spot (472 Alvarado St.) has an airy and bright atmosphere that seems made for book lovers. "I've had a passion for books ever since I was a child," Estelle comments. Her caring can be seen in the full children's section, Arts, Self-Help, Business, Spirituality .....dozens of well-stocked categories. And the audio department delights with best-sellers read by excellent performers. "I really believe people come into a bookstore on a quest," she continues. "It's gratifying to be able to help our customers find the treasures they are seeking." The comfy coffee shop serves light lunches and desserts in addition to a fine array of espresso drinks. For-sale music CD's and cassettes provide a soothing and relaxing background. Computerized ordering. Magazines galore. Ample parking in rear lot. Hours: 9-10 Monday-Thursday; 9-10:30 Friday, Saturday. And 10-8 Sunday. 647-1822.

THE SAN JOSE FLEA MARKET

A thousand garage sales...a hundred farmer's markets...an international bazaar...a country fair...The San Jose Flea Market is Northern California's largest attraction. Open air shopping for fantastic bargains, good food & refreshments, live entertainment, and fun are in store for the whole family. Over 120 acres of selling spaces, parks, a 1/4 mile shade-covered produce row, more than 2,000 stores, easy in-and-out parking, amusements and 25+ restaurants are devoted to your pleasure and comfort. Open Wed.-Sun. On weekends the entire flea market grounds are open. Wednesday is the busiest day, while Thursdays and Fridays are more like a neighborhood flea market. Admission is free. Parking is $3 per car on the weekends and free parking weekdays. Join our flea market family shoppers at the original (California's oldest) San Jose Flea Market. 1590 Berryessa Road, San Jose between Highways 101 and 680. (408) 453-1110.

One-woman show becomes a benefit for hall

THE THURSDAY, Dec. 17, performance of Family Secrets at Carmel's Cherry Hall will be a benefit for that site. Curtain at 8 p.m.

It's a one-woman show which won much praise as reviewers around the country wrote their impressions of home-grown actress Sherry Glazer (see the piece by our own John Dotson in today's edition).

Tickets for the special performance cost $16 apiece. Reservations: 624-7491.

CALIFORNIA'S FIRST Theater at Pacific and Scott Streets in Monterey has opened its 504th production since it was restarted as such a showcase 55 years ago.

Title: Troupers of the Gold Coast's Annual Olio Revue.

Included here are singing, dancing and melodramatic skits. "This once-a-year celebration gives The Troupers a chance to let their hair down and do some downright silly things," says spokesperson Marabee Boone. "For young and old alike."

The revue will play Friday and Saturday nights through Jan. 30 of next year with the exception of Dec. 25-26. There will be a special New Year's Eve show at 8 p.m. Dec. 31. Box office: 375-4916.

Holiday offering

BALLET FANTASQUE will present The Nutcracker at 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday, Dec. 18-19, in Monterey Conference Center's Steinbeck Forum.

Guests artists will include Nikolai Kabaniave from Kirov Ballet and Elizabeth Ashton (who was with American Ballet Theater) along with members of Monterey Opera.

Tickets may be bought in advance at the Theater Alliance Box Office in Monterey, Do Re Mi Music in The Barnyard, Bookworks of Pacific Grove.

Information: 372-0388.

Recognition

MONTEREY COUNTY Theater Alliance has staged its annual BARBS (Benefit and Artist Recognition Banquet), this time at Defense Language Institute's Recreation Center.

BARBS Panel Coordinator John Newkirk says 125 "recognitions" were announced that evening, covering every phase of production in live theater on the Monterey Peninsula.

Space limitations deny us the pleasure of listing the names and plays in which recipients were involved.

Chance to learn

BEGINNING AND advanced students may enroll in the modern dance workshop which Monterey Peninsula College will offer during the Winter Session.

Sherry beguiles audiences

three minutes."

"Under House Arrest" because of her parents ("They don't know what to do with me."), 16-year-old Sandra, has found that nothing could be more consoling than to get "a case of Southern Comfort, keg of beer, get really high, order Chinese food," or, in other words, an evening with "normal people."

Fern has told her she was an accident while Miguel has clairvoyantly counseled that "I chose this family." Her crisis subsists not only in family dysfunction ("I am the one who has to vacuum this entire house") but also in self-image ("I'm so fat"), and thus she is a practicing bulimic until she loses twenty-five pounds ("Then I will be perfect").

Beneath the bravura

But something of the child appears beneath the bravura of lost innocence when Sandra describes her boyfriend's affirmation of her first sexual experience ("Wow, Sandra, you're the best") while she herself can only confess, "I don't even know what I did."

And when glibly betrayed, Sandra, in fetal position on the floor, bespeaks the solipsistic catastrophe of an entire generation: "What's wrong with him! It's me. I know it's me. What's wrong with me!"

In the final transition, paternal grandmother Rose rues, "I don't know when I got old. I think it was two weeks ago. That's what happens. So watch out."

Insurance paid?

Having met her "True Love" in the sunset years, Rose has taken his advice to "Live it up till you drop dead." The complexities of this latter relationality become clear, however: "Sometimes he's so hot and heavy and I'm thinkin', did I pay the insurance for this? Your mind wanders."

And in a stirring finale, Rose leads the Cherry Center audience in a melodious reprise of "Sunrise, sunset, one season following another, laid in with happiness and cheer" and sets it all off just right: "So you are all Jewish!"

We Want Letters to the Editor!

Jazz Tides

John Logan speaks out

SPECIAL TIME: Blueswoman Debbie Davies, amongst the very best guitarists on the scene these days, will be at Doc Ricketts' Lab near Cannery Row. She starts at 9 p.m. on Thursday, Dec. 17. Only $5 per at the door. Don't miss this major talent.

MY RECENT first draft of God's Dream Band drew a fine letter from Carmelite John Logan. Let's quote from it right now:

Such a selection is entirely subjective and no two persons on earth would have the same opinion. Thus the following are comments rather than "quibbles." I respectfully submit that:

- The five Giants of Jazz who had more to do with popularizing that type of music in the 1920s and '30s and establishing a foundation that carried over until today were Armstrong, Ferd (Jelly Roll) Morton, Kid Ory, Bessie Smith and Tom (Fats) Waller.

- Sidney Bechet is right in there and many would place him in the Top Five. And of early white musicians, Jack Teagarden was up there too, only a half-step behind Bechet.

- Among arrangers, Morton, Fletcher Henderson and Duke Ellington merit top rank.

- In reeds, you are short on clarinetists: Do you not agree that Bechet (see above) and Johnny Dodds should be on the list?

- You include Strayhorn and Hodges from the Ellington band, and both rightfully so. But that band included other musical giants of top rank. Joe Nanton? Wellman Braud?

- Basie had what many consider to have been the greatest rhythm section ever and I suggest that you include at least one representative. Take your pick: Green, Jones, Page - or all three.

The persons listed above belong in the Hall of Fame not only because of their incomparable talent but also because of their influence on jazz and on the styles of those who followed them. Again, I grant the subjectivity of your selection - and of mine as well - but how dare you omit Bessie Smith from your list of vocalists?

John, I came from where I was at. Thanks for pulling me up regarding Miss Smith. Next time, we'll look at the picks of jazz deejay Johnny Adams, whose dare inspired the entire exercise.

EXPANDED SERVICE has been announced for next year by Monterey Peninsula TV Cable.

Beginning Jan. 4, MPTV will offer Black Entertainment Television. Various action groups had urged the company to do so. BET promo materials say jazz, gospel and R&B are staples of that programming.

On April 1, MPTV will add the current satellite package to its standard cable service. That means a decoder no longer will be needed to check out Discovery Channel, Arts/Entertainment, Lifetime, Nickelodeon, Nashville Network and Bravo/CNBC (Consumer News and Business).

Bravo programs jazz shows regularly. Arts/Entertainment does so occasionally.

Channel realignment was scheduled on Jan. 4. MPTV will send a new channel guide to all customers.

AVEC FEELING: Guitarist Bruce Forman will appear as guest star with the Jackie Coon Quartet Dec. 17-18-19 at Cafe Casa in downtown Monterey. No cover.

- Kuuumbwa Jazz Center has gone dark for the holidays and will crank up for action again on Jan. 8 of next year. Upcoming acts: Mose Allison, Roy Hargrove, Tony Williams, Steve Coleman, Steve Kahn.

- Nick Williams hosts another of his jazz gatherings at 7 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 17, in the Lumber Room at Carmel's Vista Lobos Park (on Third between Junipero and Torres). Solid locals like to sit in here; the "family concept" includes refreshments and optional donations. Info: 626-9151.

- The Catalyst in Santa Cruz boasts some hot future bookings - Deacon Jones and the Bucket of Blues featuring Buddy Miles (Dec. 26), Neville Brothers (Dec. 28), Los Lobos (Dec. 29), Pele Juju at the New Year's Eve Party. Call 425-7799.

- Papa Jake and those Abalone Stompers continue at Big Sur's River Inn on Sunday afternoons.

- Cibo in downtown Monterey has live groups on a regular basis. Vocalist Lori Hofer works Tuesday nights with bassist Dennis Murphy and other friends. Call 649-8151.

6. All current occupants of properties contiguous to the parcel on which the development is proposed.

B. Notice shall also be posted in at least three public places within the City and in a conspicuous place on, or immediately adjacent to, the subject property.

C. For amendments to Title 17 of the Municipal Code and General Plan Amendments, notice of a public hearing shall be published in the official newspaper of the City at least ten (10) days prior to such public hearing.

D. In satisfying the above noticing requirements, the City shall require the applicant to assist in the distribution of the notice and to bear reasonable costs associated with the administration of this Section. (Ord. 92-20, 2 (part), 1992, Ord. 86-3 1 (part), 1986; Ord. 83-26 2, 1983; Ord. 159 C.S. 1 (part), 1968; prior code 1342.11).

Such notice shall encourage public participation. (Ord. 92-20, 3 (part), 1992; Ord. 90-08 3 (part), 1990.)

Section Four. Severability

If any provisions of this Ordinance or the application thereof to any person or circumstance is held invalid, the remainder of the Ordinance, including the application of such part or provision to other persons or circumstances, shall not be affected thereby and shall continue in full force and effect. To this end, provisions of this Ordinance are severable.

B. The City Council hereby declares that it would have passed each section, subsection, subdivision, paragraph, sentence, clause or phrase hereof irrespective of the fact that any one or more sections, subsections, subdivisions, paragraphs, sentences, clauses or phrases be held unconstitutional, invalid or unenforceable.

CHS Debaters shine at Fall state

By Stephen Covell

I bet you didn't even know that there was a debating club here at Carmel High School. Yes, such a club exists here. In fact the debating team did well in its first taste of competition.

During the weekend of the 21st of November, the debating team participated in a major conference. The conference was held in Santa Clara and its name was Fall State. Fall State is where high schools from California meet to debate each other on 28 debates.

The debates had topics that ranged from "Should women be allowed to fight in combat" to "Violence isn't justified to change society."

C.H.S.'s debating team signed up late, and enter as JSA (Junior Statesmen of America). Because of their late sign-up, the team was allowed to be subsequent speakers. All eleven members participated in Fall State.

The format of Fall State is that an issue is introduced by the main speakers. The one who is in favor of the issue speaks first for 5 minutes trying to prove their point. Then the speaker who is trying to refute the issue speaks next and is allotted the same five minutes. Then the subsequent speakers can speak on either the pro or the con side of the topic. The subsequent speakers are at first allowed three minutes to convey their point, but if they're really presenting a good point or idea, their time can be extended.

After all of the subsequent speakers have gone, it is time for the closing speeches from both the main speakers. When the debate on that issue is resolved, the members of the audience vote for the pro or con side of the issue. When that is completed, the members of the audience are asked to vote by ballot who was the best speaker. This process continues for the rest of the debates.

Carmel High's debating team captured four trophies. Three of these trophies were awarded to Drew Teti and one to Mac Sutherland. Two of Teti's trophies came on the issues of "Violence isn't justified to change society," and the other on the issue of "Environmental progress is more significant than economic progress." Mac Sutherland captured his trophy on the issue of "Should prostitution be legalized?"

Teti's third trophy was won in the toughest competition that Fall State had to offer. In order to win this debate, each debater has to beat other debaters in order to advance further into the competition. Each debater doesn't know the topic beforehand, because the topic is drawn from a box. Drew Teti won the impromptu debate on the topic "Why should I win this debate."

"Debating and learning to analyze, to question one's surroundings makes one more aware of the world in which he lives, but we just like to argue," said Drew Teti.

"I was very pleased on our performance. I think we gained valuable experience and will do even better next time," said James Genone.

Controversy Embroils ASB Parking Plan

By James Genone

While the national leadership deals with the crisis in Somalia, the leadership at Carmel High has a crisis of their own. After two years of being charged a fee to park in the CHS parking lot, some students are protesting a third year of charges.

Three years ago, the ASB, under the leadership of Trent Teti, developed the idea that they would charge students $10 to park at school in order to raise funds for expansion of the overcrowded parking lot. Over the past two years the fee has been charged, but no tangible results have been seen by the student body. Now the ASB is asking students to pay up once again, but some students don't want to cooperate.

After hearing that the ASB wanted to charge $10 more this year, CHS junior Jim Rice drafted up a letter protesting the charge, and obtained a number of signatures to go along with it. The letter basically stated that the ASB has collected a lot of money, and has not told the students what will be done with it. The letter goes on to encourage students not to pay $10 this year until the ASB informs the student body of their plans for the money.

After presenting his letter to the ASB, Rice received a less than favorable reaction. The ASB allegedly called him into one of their meetings and "attacked him for an hour," said ASB member Drew Teti.

According to Teti, some of the ASB members were actually upset that someone would protest their actions.

"It's not the ASB's place to be angry, but rather to inform the student body of what they're doing," said Teti, who is CHS's student board representative.

"The intent of my letter was not to cause trouble, but rather to force the ASB to justify the $10 charge by letting the students know what is happening.

"A student came forward with a mature reaction to something he didn't like, and they (the ASB) rejected him. When I joined this organization, I didn't realize it would be a vehicle for censorship," said Teti.

In addition to Rice's letter, several posters were found around the high school protesting the ASB's practices and accusing the student government of spending school money on parties where alcohol was served. The ASB promptly tore down the posters, justifying themselves by saying that the posters were slanderous. Rice denies any connection with these posters.

"Even if I had made these posters, it's not as though the ASB hasn't slandered me by putting posters up in the ASB room that stated that I was a nimwit," said Rice.

Unfortunately all of this controversy comes just as the ASB is finishing up plans for a new parking lot. In a sort of response to Rice's letter, the ASB sent a letter around to class rooms last Friday stating that a parking plan was being worked on, and that it would cost $15,000-$20,000. The ASB has raised $3,020 so far according to ASB president Lance Thompson, and superintendent of schools Vance Baldwin stated that the school board is willing to pay the rest.

"The ASB has made it clear that they are serious about the parking problem, and the school board is ready to help finance a solution," said Baldwin.

It seems that Rice got some of what he wanted when the ASB went public with the plan, but some hard feelings remain.

"I still support my stand on the issue," said Rice.

"The ASB thinks that because they are leaders they deserve an inherent respect. This is not the case; respect must be earned!" said Drew Teti.

"Jim was part of the administration that came up with the idea to charge for parking, so I can't believe he could protest by saying he doesn't know how the money was being spent," said ASB advisor Chad Lincoln.

Although the ASB admits they should have kept the students more informed, they still think they made the right decisions.

"The ASB has experienced a lot of apathy from the student body," said Lincoln. "We used to have meetings to discuss the solution, and no one would show up, not even Jim."

Despite all of the controversy, the ASB has accomplished quite a bit with the parking problem. According to the letter the ASB published, we will have the beginnings of a new and improved parking lot as soon as February, if all goes well.

"The new parking lot will not only add around 35 new spaces, but also ease traffic by creating more driving space," said Vance Baldwin.

"I think the solution we came up with is the best one," said Lance Thompson.

"The students developed a proposal, and stuck with it over three years," said CHS principal Marie Ishida. "I think they deserve a lot of credit."

In the end, it seems that everyone got most of what they wanted. After three years of hard work by the ASB, the student body will finally have the solution to the parking problem that was so desperately needed.

The only question left to answer is: what about the $10? While ASB president Lance Thompson mentioned that charging the $10 might be mandatory because the money paid by the school board might be a loan. Vance Baldwin, on the other hand, seemed to have a differing opinion.

"It would be nice to see the high school raise as much money as possible, but they are not required to keep charging," said Baldwin.

Drew Teti made a proposal to put the question of the $10 fee to a general vote.

"It says in the ASB constitution that any decision involving the interests of the student body shall be put to a vote if twenty percent of the students sign a petition requesting the vote," said Teti. "The ASB doesn't want to do this because they are afraid of an unfavorable decision by the student body. In any representative democracy, it is the representatives job to represent the ideas and opinions of the majority of the people. In this situation, the ASB is only supporting it's own ideas and opinions, and thus has failed to be a functional governing body."

It would not seem unreasonable that the idea be put to vote according to Teti.

"I'm sure when they see what a good proposal the parking plan is, the student body will support it," said Teti. "The whole point of this is not to defeat the parking plan, but rather to stand up for the rights of the student body."

The answer to the question of the $10 should be determined fairly quickly, and with any luck the solution will please everyone. In the future, better communication between the ASB and the student body will hopefully alleviate the need for further problems of this sort.

Poetry Corner

I think you need to know that nothing is forever. You may disagree but eternity does not exist in my eyes. I once had a friend, a little firefly in the night. I held him warm and watched him glow, but when morning came he was gone and made me cry. Friends leave. Memories fade. Feelings are forgotten. Something you once felt so strong will be gone with time. Time dissolves everything. In a year the things you hold dear will be replaced and soon so will you. No one really dies, they are just recycled - the endless flow of life where nothing is sacred and nothing is yours. Nothing is forever, not even love. Lovers change just like feelings or flowers. People outgrow each other. People die and return anew like roses. You need to know that nothing is forever so you can stop your endless worry, but you never will. Neither will I. Nothing really matters unless you make it matter.

Every dripping line I have written contradicts itself. Every page in every book contradicts the next, but it makes no difference because nothing is fact, nothing is real, nothing matters, and nothing is forever.

One day you're alive and tingling like a field of dandelions. The next you're numb like a slab of cold stone.

The universe is in constant change and people are always trying to find something to cling to when all they need to do is let go.

I'm sure I learn more from just watching you than you could ever teach me and I could ever teach you. Flowers die and so will I and eventually you will too.

I sat here
Studying his face;
I won't say it was flawless
Because it wasn't
But that made it all the more Beautiful
His tall slender body
Moving
Emotion
His hair hung languishly over his
Quiet, playful face
Hands
Hands
Massive, smooth hands
Many times I touched them;

Life is Good

by Phil Crosby

Life is full of red and green.
It tastes like apple cider.
It sounds like crackling wood.
It smells like smoke.
It looks like fire.
And it feels of warmth.

lips, the earth still beneath where she lay.
On that day the rain fell, the mystical simplicity of the woman had left.
Nothing known of her leaving the earth cries in melancholy aloneness.
Yet the feeling of a presence at day break when the moon shines.

Environmental Ideas: an essay

By Amy Dowd

Jurassic Park, a novel written by Michael Crichton, contains many scientific theories. A character in the novel named Ian Malcom has his own opinion on these theories. At one point in the story, Malcom explains his theory about the state of the planet and its human population. He strongly believes that as humans, we do not have the power to save or destroy the planet, but we do not have the power to save or destroy the planet, but we do have the power to save ourselves.

I agree with many of Malcom's beliefs, although I don't agree that what he says can be so cut and dried. I believe that both the planet and human lives are in jeopardy. I also believe that we do have the power to save or destroy ourselves.

One cause of the environmental crisis is the depleting ozone layer. There is an incredible amount of heat and pollution released into the atmosphere each day. Two major sources of this heat and pollution are machines such as cars and busses, and also factories that incinerate toxic products containing carcinogens. Given the amount of pollution the atmosphere receives, the ozone layer will soon be gone leaving the plant and animal life no protection from the soon be gone leaving plant and animal life no protection from the sun's harmful rays. Without proper protection, soil would become too dense and dry for plants and vegetation to live and grow. As for humans, the effects of UV rays on both our skin and eyes is extremely dangerous and would cause severe burns.

This planet has not been well taken care of. Due to lack of education, and an understanding of our environment humans have not used their resources effectively or responsibly.

There are many ways we waste our resources, yet there are also many ways to control and ensure proper resource management. One way to solve the problem is to start the entire North American continent on a recycling program. With recycling as a federal law, the government could fund facilities to recycle materials, producing an incredible amount of usable items.

Our dependence on fossil fuels such as gas and oil also spotlights waste problems. Changing power from electricity to solar would save millions of dollars, and there would also be much less of an energy crisis. Although the technology is available, for some reason the problems are not being solved.

Eating meat seems harmless to the environment and the resources on earth. In actuality, most of the cattle market of North America is devastating our planet. American meat companies buy a great amount of their cattle from Brazil. In Brazil, acres of rain forests are destroyed in order to make grazing land for beef. The rain forest holds many species of animals, and is essential to the cooling of the atmosphere. With such rapid deforestation, the greenhouse effect will increase and many species will become endangered and eventually extinct. Since human survival is not dependent on a carnivorous diet, ending beef consumption in North America would help solve the rain forest problem.

Another situation which could soon devastate this planet is the problem of over-population. The current population rate needs to somehow be controlled. Over-population leads to many serious problems, such as poverty among low-income families, an increase in crime, over-crowded cities, and disease. The North American continent is one that attracts the most immigrants. Therefore, this particular problem would affect us greatly.

All the problems that the planet faces are easily changeable. The planet cannot save itself. Humans are destroying it, and humans will have to re-build it again. We have the power, the technology, and the resources to save our planet. We only need involvement and support from the federal government, private industries, and the inhabitants of the world.

STUDENTS HELPING THE HOMELESS

By Alex Lewis

On December 9th Susanne Newbold's Hospitality class traveled to All Saints Church in Seaside to serve a meal to the homeless.

It was a valuable experience for the students as well as Ms. Newbold.

Newbold thought it was enlightening to see a lot of different people, not just the typical homeless. "I was impressed with the people and volunteers that helped and with the type of people who came for the meal," she said.

Junior Jamie Blanchard said she felt "sad to see those people, but happy to help."

Matthew Owens, senior, added that it was "a good experience helping people."

The students went to All Saints about 2:30 in the afternoon in order to set up the food, then stayed to help serve it to the homeless that came in the evening.

Newbold summed things up: "The trip was a big success and they would like us to come back once a month."

If you would like to help the homeless, these are some things you can do:

1. Contact your local church, or shelter.
2. Donate money to the bell-ringers of the Salvation Army.
3. Donate canned food, and clothes to your local Donation Station.
4. For children, donate toys at "Toys for Tots".

The homeless problem is growing rapidly each year, please do your share to stop it!

"MRS. CALIFORNIA" STUNS AUDIENCE

By Alex Lewis

Last Friday and Saturday, the place to be was Carmel High School where the premiere of Mrs. California took place. If you weren't there, I can fill you in on the details.

All of the actors did an excellent job, though I must admit a few stood out among the rest. An exceptionally outstanding performance by Josh Pollock, he fit the part perfectly. Babs, Jenn Eiseman, also did a terrific job in playing the role of an obnoxious, yet concerned friend.

The lead role of Dot, played by a strong yet well delivered Kimbly Craig. Jim Rice, also did very well as the part of Dot's dork-like sponsor.

All of the other contestants fighting for the place of Mrs. California were, Mrs. San Francisco, Venessa Sparling, Mrs. Modesto, Heather Eagle, and Mrs. San Bernadino, and Dot's rival, Kelly Ryan.

Other helpers of the contest included, announcer Jodi Miller, Stage Manager Ryan Tews, and the "Bimbos", Sherry Chu, Navarre Bautista, Jennifer, and Rebecca Eagle.

All in all, I found this play to be witty, and charming, and I highly recommend it for you and a loved one, or the whole family.

A QUESTION OF MORALS

By Gloyd Robinson

All around the world there are people who are deciding to have or not have children on the basis of whether or not it is convenient for them. Here is a list of percentages from a recent Planned Parenthood survey of pregnant women going through abortion counseling: 21% said that they were not ready for the responsibility, 21% said that they could not afford to support the child, 12% had relationship problems, 11% felt that they were not mature enough and 16% of the people said that they were not ready for the changes it would bring to their lives. The other 4% were for "other reasons."

The other 7% of the abortions were from non-preventable cases such as the health of the mother and baby, or rape and incest.

Another related fact is one submitted by a doctor who performs abortions on mostly middle-eastern and Asian women. 99% of the abortions carried out by the doctor were on female fetuses. In these women's native cultures the male baby is held in high regard while the female is looked upon as being next to worthless. If it were possible to determine whether or not the child would have freckles or acne couples might then decide not to have a freckled girl with acne, but rather to abort it and try again for a blond blue-eyed male. Hitler exterminated over eight million people for much the same reason except, that was called genocide.

Some people are outraged by anyone suggesting that the government could decide what women can and cannot choose to do with their bodies. Women cannot legally choose to use their bodies to steal or for prostitution. The law specifically states that women cannot choose to use their bodies in this way.

If the whole situation still confuses you, think about this: Given that there is a gray area as to where life actually begins, keep in mind that you may be toying with a life. A life just as good as yours. Should we not just give life the benefit of the doubt?

I am sincerely sorry if I stated or implied anything that offended anyone, this was not my intention. I wholeheartedly encourage any letters to the editor on this subject. You can voice your opinion too.

NELLI KEEL; THE WONDER CHICK

By Collin Murray

The winner of this weeks Random Student Lottery is Nelli Keel. Nelli is a junior, 16 years old, and a very interesting person.

In her spare time, Nelli enjoys reading and writing books. She also loves to ride horses, a hobby she fulfills often. Some of her favorite things are the color blue, pizza, and heavy metal. Her favorite band is The Red Hot Chili Peppers, and her favorite class is Wildlife Biology. "I love nature and Mr. Fletcher is a fun teacher."

"In the future", says Nelli "I would like to be a horse trainer and own a ranch in Montana."

Her father lives in Montana, so Nelli, (an only child), lives with her mother on a ranch in Carmel Valley. She gets along well with both parents, but says "I miss my dad terribly and can't wait to see him again."

I asked Nelli how the school year was going and she said, "It's my best year so far, but it could be better." "It helps to have good friends."

One of Nelli's friends, Kelly Walsh, says, "Nelli is a wonderful, caring person." "I'm glad she's my friend."

Finally, two of the most important things to know about Nelli is she's "very pro-choice", and her shoe size is 7 1/2.

CHS Fixture Sets Sights on Big-Time Ball

By Ranon Masliyah

He wears the ever-popular goatee, bringing back memories of Magic Johnson's glory days and owns a short and stout six foot two inch frame that makes one wonder if this man is related to Charles Barkley in any way. No, this man is not a basketball player, he's an ex-basketball player. He's also a round mound who's college bound. College-coaching bound, that is. You see, ever since his second year at Monterey Peninsula College, Mike Woodie has been sure that he has what it takes to become a successful basketball coach at the college level.

Woodie's "quest to coach" began all the way back in 1980 when he graduated from Monterey High School. After playing four years of basketball, including one year on the varsity team, Woodie wasn't sure if he could compete collegiately. "I didn't think my ball-handling skills were good enough which is pretty much what affected my decision whether or not to play hoops."

As a result, Woodie decided to play baseball while attending M.P.C. in the fall of 1980. But, as Woodie says, "Baseball just didn't work out." Fortunately, Sal Cardinale, the men's head basketball coach at M.P.C. during Woodie's enrollment, agreed to let him be the official scorer for the men's basketball games. This is when, as Woodie puts it, "I really began to like coaching. I saw the strategies, etc. and said, 'Hey, I can do this.'"

The next big break came when Woodie was invited to be a staff member at the Monterey Peninsula College Basketball Camp in 1987. While he was an instructor at the camp, Mike met former Carmel High principal and ex-Carmel varsity basketball coach Joe Feldeisen. Feldeisen expressed a need for campus security and soon after, Woodie was offered a job on the campus security staff at Carmel High. After contemplating Feldeisen's job offer, Woodie decided to accept.

Little did Woodie know, though, that this would be the first opportunity for him to showcase his coaching talents.

When he arrived at Carmel High, Woodie was immediately accosted by varsity basketball coach, Rich Frank. Oddly enough, Frank was actually the head coach at Seaside High when Woodie was a player at Monterey High. After this minor reunion Frank informed Woodie that there was a freshman and a junior varsity vacancy for head basketball coach. Woodie opted to take the junior varsity job but things didn't immediately work out.

In 1987, his rookie year as a high school coach, his junior varsity team chalked up only 8 wins. The following season "Coach", as he was now called, made a few adjustments and experimented with a new system. "I let them (the players) open up their game and we just were running people out of the gym," he says. The result of this new hoop philosophy was an impressive 16 victories, including eight wins in league play.

Mike Woodie - part-time campus security and basketball coach, proudly poses like he will when he reaches his college coaching goal.

How good have Woodie's teams been? Well, since his first year as J.V. coach, the Padres with Coach Woodie at the helm have never finished under .500. This is quite remarkable considering the fact that many sophomores who usually make up the bulk of a J.V. team are often called up to the varsity team to gain experience even though their playing time may be limited.

So far Coach Woodie has only had the opportunity to coach on the junior varsity level, but an annual trip to Las Vegas sponsored by the Nike Spring Basketball League has provided a tremendous amount of exposure for aspiring coaches such as Woodie. The Vegas trip is taken each summer and allows selected players in the Nike League to compete against other Nike League teams from across the country. This past summer, Coach Woodie and ex-Palma head coach Bob Burlison took a team from Northern California to compete in the tournament. While he was there, Woodie chatted with many big-time college coaches such as Steve Fisher (Michigan), John Thompson (Georgetown), and Jim Boeheim (Syracuse).

The sight of such well-known coaches prompted Woodie to contemplate his position as a J.V. coach and to continue his quest to coach on a higher level. "I feel I can go somewhere and take over a varsity team. Possibly as an assistant with Bruce (M.P.C. head coach Bruce Furuya). I definitely want to stick with basketball though, because I love it."

Mike Woodie concludes his "quest to coach" with the following declaration: "My ultimate goal is to coach a Division I squad. An assistant, whatever, as long as I'm moving up. I want my players to turn on ESPN and see me on the sidelines and say, 'There's Mike Woodie! He was my coach!'"

Soccer team off to tough start

by Andri Suwono

Starting the season with only eight returning varsity players, the 1992-93 soccer team is facing a major transition. With new coaches added to guide the team, a whole new Carmel Padres soccer team has been formed. The new coaches are Armon Zanopian as assistant coach for varsity, while the J.V. team is handled by Jodi Shaw and Mike Jones. Wearing new grey uniforms and red "Umbro" shorts, the Padres are still seeking leg power to score goals and bring back Padre Pride.

"It's gonna be a tough season for us, although we have a great team," said Brett Butler, varsity veteran and team captain. "But with the drastic improvement we've made, we're inspired to make it to CCS."

The team has been struggling without its best player, Santiago Lozano, who was injured during the game against Seaside. He will not be playing to open the season.

On Monday, December 7, the Padres took a 10-2 loss against Monterey. Playing on a muddy and wet field, the Padres defense couldn't stop the quick offense and good ball-handling of Monterey. As a result, goalie Bret Roberts had to struggle to save many goal attempts.

Many good individual efforts were displayed by the Padres but it was not good enough to break the Toreadores defensive plays. "We have a lot of work to do," said disappointed varsity coach Jeff Wright.

Scoring for the Padres were Carlos Perez and Jono Spaulding who had an unbelievable 45 yard free kick that went through the goalie's hands and burned the net.

"We're a young team with a lot of individual talent," said captain Jono Spaulding. "We need to get used to playing as a team and working together to win the game." The varsity record so far is 0-1-1, and they are obviously hoping to win more games in the future.

Under new management and coaches, the J.V. team is trying to improve.

"We're going to do well if everybody keeps a positive attitude," explained Jodi Shaw. Also working with the JV team is Mike Jones, who coaches the Youth Program and is an advocate for Youth Soccer. With a good dedication to the game Jodi Shaw hopes her team will win 75% of their games.

Young wrestlers prepare for battle

by Larry Brooks

The wrestlers have it good this year with close to twenty guys ready to fight. The Padres have a young team this season with many sophomores and freshmen.

Timber Trotter, Lance Thompson, Mike Davidson, and Bret Morton are the only seniors on the squad but they lead the team quite well. At about 140 lbs. Mike Davidson has been to many wrestling camps since he was a freshman and dominates his weight class. Bret Morton has wrestled for three years and weighs in at about 160 lbs. Lance Thompson wrestles in the 125 lb class and has been wrestling for about 3 years. Timber "Tor" Trotter has been wrestling for 4 years in the 171 lb class.

"There are many very competitive teams this year, I think we will do well against them."

There haven't been any matches yet but their first should be exciting.

Varsity coach Rich Frank and his Padre bench try not to look too far down the road as they compile more and more wins.

Big Weekend For CHS Basketballers

By Amy Sullivan

The CHS basketball players had a dose of professional ball this weekend as they played back to back games on Friday, December 4 and Sat. Dec. 5.

The boys team played in the MPC tournament and the girls had two non-league games here at CHS.

During Friday's contest the boys competed against Galena School of Reno, Nevada and pulled out a 21 point win thanks to the play of captain Ben Fahrner with 13 points and some awesome rebounds and to the 13 points from forward Nate Stiles.

"We came out a little slow in the first half but once we got on track, we just took them apart," boasted Dean Wilson of their play.

In the game Saturday, the competition was a bit more stiff as the guys took on Andrew Hill School, out of San Jose, the #7 team in the state for Division II. The game was an excellent one and turned out to be very evenly matched. It was close throughout and in the last 15 seconds of the fourth quarter, R.J. Powell hit a 23 foot jump shot to make it a one point game. Things were looking good but with only 15 seconds, there was nothing to do but foul intentionally and Andrew Hill hit both their freethrows. The final score was 49-46.

"They were a strong team," added Wilson, "We played well and showed people that we can hold our own with anyone."

As for the girls, they played Salinas High here at CHS on Friday and won 50-40 with 16 points from Jennifer Rosenthal.

On Saturday they played again at CHS, this time against North Salinas High. Both teams were tired from playing the day before and the game was a tough one. Our post players got into some foul trouble but Doreen Evans still held the team up with 11 points to contribute to their 58-46 win.
